KINGSTON IN READINESS TO WELCOME MR. HUGHES

Reception to Presidential Candidate Will Be a Popular Ovation in Which Boyhood Associates Will Have Enthusiastic Part—Monster Automobile Parade to Feature Greeting.

Kingston is in readiness to welcome Charles E. Hughes tomorrow and to give a demonstration of its feeling for the man selected by the Republican party for president.

The demonstration will be the biggest that has been given by the city in honor of any man and Mr. Hughes will be made to feel that in coming to Kingston—which he has long wanted to do—he is again in the home of his loyal friends.

The meeting at which Mr. Hughes will speak will be held at the Kingston opera house at 10:30 o'clock and will begin promptly at that time. The meeting will be presided over by J. E. Klock, and Mr. Hughes will begin speaking immediately on his arrival at the opera house.

Automobile Parade to Be Big.

The Hughes party will be escorted from the Rhinebeck ferry to the Kingston opera house by automobiles from all parts of the county and there is every indication that the automobile turnout will be the biggest ever known in Ulster county. Kingston city automobilists will be joined by automobilists from every section of the county, many of whom will arrive in Kingston tonight in order to be on hand early tomorrow morning. Automobilists have been invited to decorate their cars and the American flag and bunting will be used freely for decorative purposes not only by automobilists but by householders and business men along the route of the parade.

Route of the Parade.

The parade will start from the Rhinebeck ferry house and will proceed on Broadway, following that street to Albany avenue, to Clinton avenue, to Main street, to Wall street, to North street, to Fair street, and thence to the Kingston opera house.

Proceed carefully. Pass through these streets until you find a suitable place for parking your car. Observe traffic regulations.

Don't try to get too near the opera house with your car. Don't back to turn around in any street during this hour. Go around the block.

You will not be permitted on John street between Wall street and Clinton avenue during these hours. J. ALLAN WOOD, Chief of Police.

Arrival and Departure.

Mr. Hughes and his party will arrive at Rhinebeck on a special train at 10:15 a. m. and will proceed at once to Rhinebeck, where the automobile escort will be in waiting. Those who find it impossible to attend the meeting at the opera house will greet him there.

Mr. Hughes will be accompanied by Mrs. Hughes, who has been with her husband since the beginning of his trip through the United States, and forty others, who include stenographers, officials in charge of the trip, and thirty correspondents of the largest newspapers in the United States.

The party will proceed at once to the Kingston opera house, accompanied by the automobile escort, and after the meeting, Mr. Hughes and his party will return to Rhinebeck, the special train leaving there at 12:15 o'clock.

The honor of a visit from Mr.

HUGHES ALLIANCE TO DO ITS SHARE

Large Representation of Its 3,000 Membership Roll Expected to be on Hand Tomorrow to Greet Candidate—Officers Active in Aiding Big Reception Plans.

The Hughes Alliance Executive Committee has completed plans for the Hughes reception and meeting on Friday, and will have representatives stationed at principal points with Hughes membership badges and cards. Headquarters will be a busy place during the entire day and it is expected that all members of the Alliance throughout the city and county, amounting to 3,000 in number, will take this opportunity of seeing and hearing the candidate, in whose interest the Alliance was organized and has been doing an active and effective work.

The work of the Hughes Alliance has met with the hearty approval of Governor Hughes, and in the state at large has enrolled over 100,000 men.

The officers and members of the executive committee both within and without the city are actively engaged in the work.

Mr. H. Herzog, Secretary of the Alliance, is in charge of the automobile arrangements and decorations for the Hughes gathering on Friday. Scott D. Hornbeck, member of the executive committee, of the Alliance, will act as marshal of the parade.

Ashley W. Cooper, member of the executive committee, has been actively engaged in assisting the secretary and in corresponding with the numerous owners of cars in this vicinity and throughout the county, and has devoted a great deal of time in the work incident to the Friday meeting.

F. E. W. Darrow, member of the executive committee of the Alliance, presided at a Republican rally in Griffith's Hall on Wednesday night. S. H. Chauvenet, treasurer of the Hughes Alliance, will accompany Senator Walton to attend a Republican rally at Coraick on Friday night.

H. H. Flemming, chairman of the Hughes Alliance, attended and spoke at a Republican mass meeting held at Napanoch and also at a meeting held at Kerhonkson on Wednesday night.

Although organized late in September, the work of the Hughes Alliance has been pushed with vigor and much attention has been given to the details of completing the organization and enrollment of members and enlisting an interest in the election of Charles E. Hughes and in an active campaign to keep his name before the voters.

DRINKING 18 DAYS ARRESTED ON 19TH

Wife Has Husband, Andrew Wrin, Arrested to Straighten Him Out—Charges Non-Support—Case Adjourned.

According to Mrs. Andrew Wrin's statement in recorder's court this morning her husband had been on a drinking spree for the past eighteen days, and during that time had failed to provide for the support of herself and five children, and on Wednesday, the nineteenth day, she swore out a warrant for his arrest.

Mr. Wrin was locked up in the county jail over night, and this morning when he was arraigned before Recorder Lang he appeared to have been sobered up by his jail experience.

After the court had read the charge preferred and informed Wrin of his rights the husband entered a plea of guilty to the charge.

Mrs. Wrin informed the court that she had been forced to take the action she did and the only reason she had had her husband arrested was to get him straightened out so that he could return to work.

When her husband is sober he is all right, and she had never before been forced to take the action she had.

Recorder Lang said that he would hold the case open for one week, and in default of $200 bail bond he committed Wrin to jail for that period.

MARINA MAY HAVE STRUCK A MINE

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Berlin, Nov. 2.—There is practically a complete absence of fears in official circles that the sinking of the British freight ship Marina will endanger relations between Germany and the United States.

There has been no report as yet from the commander of the U-boat which may have sunk the Marina and it is regarded here as entirely possible that the vessel may have struck a mine, as was the case of the Albatross.

It is unlikely that any German submarine operating in the vicinity of the spot where the Marina went down would be heard from before the middle or latter part of next week. The submarines are in constant touch with their bases but make no report on ships sunk until they get back to their home base.

The United States embassy has been assured that it will be supplied with the facts as quickly as they can be secured in view of the circumstances that there were Americans on board the ship.

Information from outside sources establishes the Marina as an armed transport of government supplies. She has been engaged in the transportation of horses from the United States for use by the British army and, according to authentic information, she carried a gun at her stern.

It is felt here that Germany's previous declarations to the United States fully cover the case so far as the facts are known here at present. However, if information, not now in hand, should cause subsequent events to take a serious course, it is believed here that Ambassador Gerard would hasten his return to Germany in an attempt to prevent any open break of relations.

PHOENICIA.

Phoenicia, Nov. 2.—Earl Ostrander and Miss Ida M. Beegs, both of Lexington, N. Y., were married at the M. E. parsonage by the Rev. E. Bohne-Echolt last Sunday evening. Immediately after the ceremony they left by automobile for Kingston.

Clinton Ferry is the owner of a new Ford touring car. Good luck to you.

Miss Edna Brethaupt is ill. A number of our Republicans plan to go down to Kingston on Friday morning and hear Mr. Hughes.

The Rev. George M. Cranston of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church will preach in the M. E. Church Sunday evening at 7:30.

Gordon Ferry has sold his property next to the Methodist Church to Emory Neal of this village. Mr. Neal plans to rent the house, we understand.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Van Buskirk have returned from a visit to Monroe, N. Y.

Louis Kern returned from New York last Monday. Mrs. Kern is not expected until after Thanksgiving.

WAS MARINA IN ADMIRALTY SERVICE?

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Washington, Nov. 2.—State department officials today were almost as far from reaching decisions as to facts surrounding the sinking of the British freighter Marina as they were when the first official report was received on Monday. The belief is growing, however, that she was torpedoed in accordance with the submarine warfare pledges given this government by Germany.

Officials pointed today to the question of whether the Marina was or had been in the admiralty service as being the one point of most importance to be cleared up. Press dispatches from London passed by the British censors stating "It appears that the vessel may have been engaged in admiralty service as being given careful consideration. This is the most important point now being inquired into by Ambassador Page in London. His report is expected late today or tomorrow."

Should it be established officially that the Marina had been in the admiralty service under the general admiralty rules it is believed here that the entire matter will be dropped. The state department has ruled in previous instances that a merchantman that has been formally taken over by the admiralty cannot reassume her status as a merchantman during the progress of war.

In the absence of official copies of the affidavits of American survivors, officials have tentatively accepted as true the press dispatches quoting Americans as saying the Marina was sunk without warning. It has never been made clear, however, where the Marina was resting when she was sunk.

The presence of a 4.7 inch gun on the Marina, unless it be proved that it was used against the submarine, will be looked upon by the state department as only a detail. The fact that the Marina carried a gun without it being used will not be grouped with the facts on which a decision as to legality of the attack will be based.

WAS OUT AGAIN NOW IN AGAIN

William Clark, Jailed For Three Months For Disorderly Conduct, Freed on Wednesday Morning, Arrested That Afternoon.

William Clark of Post street was arrested three months ago on a charge of disorderly conduct, and was sent to the county jail for that period of time by Recorder Lang. Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock Clark was discharged from jail as his term had expired.

Mr. Clark sniffed the air eagerly as he stepped out free from the confines of the jail, and headed for the lower section of the city. Evidently he had some spare change or his credit was good for by noontime William had acquired such a cargo of joy water that he felt it necessary to stand on the corner of Post and West Union streets and deliver an address.

Unfortunately for William his address was punctuated with remarks that are never printed in the public print.

Such a nuisance did William make of himself that a neighbor swore out a warrant for William's arrest and the warrant was placed in the hands of Policeman James V. Connolly to serve.

The officer found William asleep in bed and roused him from his slumbers to announce that he had better accompany him back to the jail.

This morning William, who had sobered up during the night, was arraigned before Recorder Lang and pleaded hard for another chance, but the recorder had heard William make similar pleas before and he sent William to Albany for sixty days.

Policeman Dugan accompanied William to the pen later in the day and turned him over to the authorities.

An Echo of Hallowe'en.

An echo of Hallowe'en was heard in recorder's court this morning when a dozen boys were arraigned before Recorder Lang charged with stealing a wagon owned by G. V. Parish. The wagon was later recovered but the shafts had been removed. Mr. Parish said the damage to the wagon amounted to about $25. The case was held open so that other boys who were in the deal could be summoned to appear to explain what they did with the shafts. The boys concerned in stealing the wagon will be assessed the amount of the damage.

Winners Class to Meet.

VIENNA'S HOPE OF PEACE IN SUMMER

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Vienna, Nov. 2.—The success of the operations of the Central Powers and their Allies against Rumania and the failure of the Entente drive in Macedonia have raised the hope here that peace will be restored before the middle of next summer. The military expert of the semi-official Fremdenblatt says:

"All chances for a victory of the Allies on the Balkans have been destroyed by the successes of Mackensen in Dobrudja and the counter-offensive of General von Falkenhayn in Transylvania."

"There is no longer any doubt that Rumania will quickly share the fate of Serbia. The 'bridge' which connects Germany and Austria-Hungary with Turkey through Bulgaria is perfectly secure, because the threat from the north has been removed and the Allied forces in Macedonia are not strong enough to smash their way through the German-Bulgarian defenses guarding the Orient Railway."

"On the Balkan peninsula the Allies are completely defeated, although they may maintain themselves on Greek soil until the end of the war. The British, French and Italians are not able to aid Rumania and it may well be doubted that Russia can support her happy new ally successfully. If Mackensen and Falkenhayn which connect Bucharest with Czernovitz and Odessa, Rumania will be conquered and out of the war and the line of the Teutonic allies will be shortened by hundreds of miles."

"A drive of the forces of the Central Powers through the narrowest part of Rumania will not only release large masses of Austrian and Bulgarian troops from the western and southern Rumanian borders, but also threaten the Russian flank in Bukovina and Galicia. The crushing of Rumania will create a desperate situation for the armies of the Czar and may make Petrograd inclined to negotiate a separate peace."

"In the east the Central Powers have complete control of operations and in the west in German lines are now seriously endangered, despite the efforts of the English and French. Austria and her allies have every reason to await the further developments of the war calmly and confidently."

TAXICAB DRIVERS ANNOY PASSENGERS

Detective Goodsell of West Shore Railroad Invited Three Chauffeurs to Appear Before Recorder Lang—Court Issues Warning.

In order to prevent taxi drivers from annoying passengers alighting from the West Shore trains at the Union Station the railroad has marked out a line and issued a warning to chauffeurs that they must keep to the other side of this line, and not solicit trade on railroad property.

Wednesday Detective Goodsell, of the West Shore Railroad, held a session with some of the taxi drivers and warned them to be careful and not cross the line, but some of them did so and as a result the detective invited three of the chauffeurs to appear before Recorder Lang today.

This morning the three chauffeurs were present in court and Detective Goodsell explained the rules the railroad had made to prevent passengers from being annoyed. The three drivers said that they were not as guilty of violating the rules as other men, and had always tried to keep on the right side of the line established by the railroad.

They said that every once in a while a new chauffeur would appear at the station seeking patronage and would ignore the line and cross over it in order to solicit passengers.

Recorder Lang said that the railroad company had a right to establish the line as it had and that he would issue a general warning that the next chauffeur brought down before him and found guilty would be fined, and he advised the three men before him to warn the others of that fact. The recorder said that a number of complaints had been made regarding some of the chauffeurs annoying passengers and that the police had received complaints.

While no arrests were made in the present instance, the railroad company will have arrests made if the rules are not complied with.

Pictures of Educational Value.

Lyman H. Howe's travel festival of moving pictures at the Kingston opera house Wednesday night were the most comprehensive educational views that have been displayed in Kingston since Howe's pictures were here last spring. The United States Military Academy at West Point and scenes of all its varied activities were extremely entertaining, while the views of Hawaii, Norway and Spain possessed a value whose appreciation by the audience will not be forgotten soon.

Small Fire on Johnston Avenue.

Willwyck House answered a still alarm of fire shortly before midnight and found a blaze in a shed on Johnston avenue owned by A. Maxon, the baker. The fire was discovered by Mrs. Boice, a neighbor, who telephoned to the fire department. Tramps sleeping in the barn may have caused the blaze. The fire was quickly extinguished.

DEUTSCHLAND CARGO WORTH $10,000,000

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New London, Nov. 2.—Amidst the tossing billows of the mid-Atlantic funeral services will be held for the crew of the lost German merchant submarine Bremen when the Deutschland goes on her voyage home.

Now that they are certain that the Bremen went to the bottom the crew of the Deutschland decided today that the most appropriate way they could give farewell honors to the seamen on their ill-fated sister ship would be to hold a memorial service at sea. Consequently it was decided that a laurel wreath bound with the German naval ensign should be cast upon the waters while prayers were said.

It was first suggested that the words, "Auf Wiedersehen" ("Until We Meet Again"), be inscribed on the wreath, but some objected to it. "It is too much like tempting fate," said the objectors. "We may meet those poor fellows at the bottom of the sea soon enough."

The expenses are being borne jointly by all the members of the Deutschland's crew.

Completely shrouded from view between the new $1,000,000 state pier and her mother ship, the Wilhelmshafen, the Deutschland was the scene of great activity and bustle today. Everything was ready for the immediate removal of her cargo.

The cargo is much more valuable than was first estimated, some placing the figures at as high as $10,000,000. It was reported that the undersea liner carried jewels, but this was denied. However, it is certain that she carried quantities of securities in addition to drugs and chemicals.

Captain Paul Koenig was anxious to get his boat reloaded and started on the homeward trip as quickly as possible for he hoped to make another voyage before winter weather prevents it. It is possible that the Deutschland may remain here only a week.

The wireless apparatus of the under-water freighter has been sealed by U. S. Naval authorities so that she cannot communicate with ships at sea.

Captain Hinsch, of the Eastern Forwarding Company, American agents of the owners of the Deutschland, had at first objected to this procedure because Lieut. Briggs, U. S. N., was not in uniform. However, as soon as the proper credentials were produced no further protest was made.

Captain Koenig said he expected to have no difficulties with the customs officials. If any arose at all it would be over the securities carried by the ship.

An official of the German embassy was expected from Washington today to get a bag of mail consigned to Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador.

New London is preparing a big reception for Captain Koenig and his men.

CARLSTROM LANDS AFTER 480 MILES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Erie, Pa., Nov. 2.—Winging his way from Chicago to New York at the rate of almost 100 miles an hour in an effort to make a non-stop flight, Aviator Victor Carlstrom was forced to descend near Erie at 11:27 o'clock this morning after having flown 480 miles. Engine trouble brought the daring aviator to earth. One of the pipes on his big 2000 horsepower machine came loose soon after he left Girard, near Erie. Carlstrom kept on flying, however, but when seven miles south of this city the engine trouble became so bad that he was forced to land and came down on the big circus grounds in the southern section of the city.

When he landed Carlstrom said he was feeling fine and declared he would continue his trip just as soon as repairs could be made.

Carlstrom left Chicago at 6 o'clock this morning and at one stage of his journey was flying over 100 miles an hour.

They Changed Their Minds.

A woman claims the privilege of changing her mind. When several change their minds at one time, as did the ladies of the Fair Street Reformed Church at their regular Ladies' Aid meeting on Wednesday afternoon, there must be a good reason for it; and there is. They decided to serve a chicken pie dinner in place of a chicken salad supper. The dinner will be served from 5 to 8 o'clock. Following is the menu: Chicken pie, mashed potatoes, creamed onions, cabbage salad, cranberries, pickles, pie and coffee. Do not forget the date—Election day, Nov. 7th. The fair will be opened at 2 o'clock and a fine assortment of aprons, towels and fancy articles will be for sale at the domestic booth and delicious home made candies will also be for sale. The decorations will be our national colors in honor of the day and the spirit of patriotism which is all about us. The public is very cordially invited.

A Busy Friday Afternoon.

The ladies of the Rondout Presbyterian Church are requested to meet in the chapel on Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock to work on the decorations for the coming fair which will be held in the chapel on November 21 and 22.

STREET GOSSIP ABOUT TOWN

"Have you heard William C. De Witt's Flying Squadron yet?" asked the friend of the street corner politician.

"No, and I don't want to, either," replied the politician emphatically.

"How is that?" asked the friend. "Why, I heard a prominent man say after he had heard them speak that it might better be dubbed the 'Flying Squadron,' said the politician."

"Teasing?" queried the friend. "They tease you into believing they are orators," replied the politician with a chuckle.

"He not only kept us out of war, but by the looks of the price tags he will keep us out of our Thanksgiving turkey," writes Old Subscriber.

He was somewhat seedy looking and his hand trembled as he knocked on the kitchen door, and he hesitated on the point of flight when the door opened and a kindly faced man stepped out and asked him what he wanted.

"I was wondering if you could loan me fifty cents so that I could buy some coal for my family. I need that amount to make up the price of half a ton," replied the seedy one.

The kindly faced man after he had glanced keenly at the seedy one replied: "Well, if I let you have half a dollar I suppose you will use it to go to the movies with instead of buying coal."

"Oh, no, sir, you are wrong," replied the seedy one. "I have got fifty cents laid aside for the movies."

A Problem for a Solomon—That police courts have their problems, and knotty cases, that is shown by the following little incident: A certain woman has five small children, the youngest of which is a nursing baby. This woman is always getting into trouble with her neighbors, and is a disturber in the neighborhood and numberless complaints are lodged against her. She has been arrested several times, but still insists in violating the law.

Now the problem is this: If she is fined for disorderly conduct and pays the fine it means that the city will have to pay out just that amount to keep her children in food. If she is sent to jail she will have to take the nursing baby, and maybe one of the youngest of the four others with her as she has no money to hire some one to look after the children while she is locked up in jail, and then who would look after the other young children? Putting the problem in concrete form, she is not able to pay a fine and with her family it would hardly be right to jail her. What would Solomon do in a case like that? Here is a concrete problem for social reform workers, and others to solve. It is an actual condition. What would you do if you were a judge in case this woman was brought before you and found guilty? Jail her, fine her, or what?

"Alfred D. Van Buren, who is running for senator on the Democratic ticket, is advertising that if he is elected he will be found in Albany looking after the people's interest," said the friend to the street corner politician.

"The only trouble with Alfred," replied the politician with a chuckle, "is that he doesn't even know what district he is running in."

"Well, you can't expect a Democrat to know everything," retorted the friend.

"Sure not, and I suppose Alfred realizes that he stands as much chance representing the voters of the counties of Orange and Sullivan as he does the counties of Ulster and Greene," replied the politician.

"But as long as he is running for office in the 25th district, why don't he go down there and make speeches instead of talking and working in Ulster county?" asked the friend.

"Probably because he will get more votes from those who never heard him orate than from those who have," answered the politician with a smile.

"But why don't the people of the 25th district have something to say about a man from another district trying to represent them as senator?" queried the friend.

"Probably they are like the people of the 27th district; they don't know he is running," said the politician.

The KITCHEN CABINET

But for some trouble and sorrow we should never know half the good there is about us.

Industry is the soul of business and the keystone of prosperity.—Dickens.

The world is mine oyster, which I with sword will open.—Shakespeare.

OYSTERS IN VARIOUS WAYS.

Oysters are natural or in a stew are the ways they are most commonly served. They should be carefully handled to see that no shell or foreign substance is left, then placed in a sieve and water poured over them.

Oyster Souffle.—Scald two dozen oysters in their own liquor, drain, remove the beads and pound in a mortar with two tablespoons of softened bread crumbs, soaked in water and squeezed dry; mix three yolks of eggs, two tablespoons of butter, a gill of oyster liquor and an equal quantity of whipped cream. Season with salt and cayenne; add a little lemon juice and the whites of two eggs, well whipped. Stir this mixture lightly and turn into a buttered mold; cover with paper, well buttered and steam 30 minutes. When ready to serve, turn the souffle out on a hot dish and place some oyster sauce around it.

Spindled Oysters.—Take two dozen large oysters and the same number of slices of bacon, cut very thin. Have a half dozen steel skewers, small ones, and spread an oyster and a piece of bacon, alternating them. Place the bacon through the corner and do not crowd. Lay the skewers across a baking pan and cook in a quick oven or under gas five minutes. Lay each skewer with its contents on a slice of nicely browned toast; pour the gravy over and serve at once.

Virginia Oyster Soup.—Wash a quart of oysters, saving the liquor. Strain and add two blades of mace, one stalk of celery, chopped fine, one teaspoonful of salt, and a pod of red pepper. Scald, add two tablespoons of butter, rubbed smooth with one tablespoonful of flour; add a pint of milk and a pint of cream. Allow to come to a boil; add the oysters and the moment they are plump and the edges curl, remove from the fire. Serve from a tureen with inch squares of toast.

Apricot juice makes a delicate sauce for desserts, like souffles or custards.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, Nov. 2.—Ideal weather and pleasant associations combined to add great interest to the grand chicken dinner under the auspices of the Auxiliary Club of the M. E. Church last Friday, served from 5:30 to 8 p. m., in the church parlors, and to say it was first class is only adding more honors to the past, for this club has always had the reputation of serving grand meals, and they fully sustained the past records and the people said as they entered the building that the delicious odors that greeted them made all feel that there would be forthcoming a meal that combined the two virtues of satisfying both the soul and body. All men and women of a hearty meal and their wives for a close second. The serving in the kitchen and dining room was flawless. These people have china and silver in abundance and their tables looked fine, and so capable the kitchen force, so quiet and orderly, every detail that the people in attendance were extremely cordial in their commendation of the affair. The auditorium was open to all and the orchestra discoursed several fine selections and Mrs. Kelsey Staples, the organist, showed her skill upon the fine organ. The music was greatly enjoyed and appreciated by everyone present. These people from their labors realized a nice sum of money to put in the treasury and the various heads of committees wish to express their gratitude to all for helping out with the dinner and to all who attended and helped to make it the success that it proved to be.

Captain R. H. Decker spent a few days this week in Washington Hollow with Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Decker Tuesday evening. High and camp, Sons of Veterans, held their meeting and had a very fine time. Their next regular meeting will be held in November.

Edward Miller has been ill for a few days. Had a cold and inflammation in one eye. Glad to report he is better and resumed his duties in Poughkeepsie on Wednesday.

Some of our people have gone on a fishing trip again. They never tire of the sport.

Daughters of America celebrated Halloween by giving a masque party in K. of P. Hall Tuesday evening. The were over 100 in attendance. The decorations were the usual corn stalks and Jack lanterns. Their candles did not give light enough to dazzle members or visitors and with the red lights turned on gave a warm glow to the room and suits of the masqueraders. All were seated around the room and soon became anxious to find out their friends. Some just were contented with staring at the doorway to watch the guise of new comers. The climax was reached at 10 o'clock, when all marched around the room and were requested to unmask before the eat. There was much a wide and generous smile as each glanced at the other and discovered how mistaken their identity had been. Then refreshments were served after which selections from Victrola made many feel as if they must just have a good waltz, and so they tripped the light fantastic until late. To say all had a fine time would scarcely express it and some of them looked as if every spark of vital meaning had been crushed out of them by overuse and appeared just fagged out, but they soon rested and will be ready for another evening of sport soon.

Mrs. Chester Atkins and daughter, Ethel, were shoppers in Poughkeepsie on Wednesday.

Little Rowena Pratt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Pratt, gave a party to several of her little friends on Tuesday afternoon. This took on the nature of a masquerade also and these little people just had one of the best times you could think of, and really the tots have as much enjoyment out of these sports as do the older ones. It was a pleasure to all of them. Bountiful refreshments were served and that ended the party most delightfully.

Mrs. DeWitt Clearwater has returned home after spending a short time at Lake Mohawk with her son and wife, Mrs. and Mr. Victor Clearwater.

Mr. Northrup of Milton was a caller on friends here Tuesday.

Order of Eastern Star held a masquerade party Monday evening in Masonic Hall. The room was decorated with cornstalks and Jack o' lanterns. There was a good attendance. The prominent feature of the evening was what they termed a mock marriage of some colored people. The wedding march was played and the bride party entered all gowned very attractively and it was a very amusing affair. Mrs. Abe Bloomer was the one who got up this side scene and all can think her for the pleasure. The costumes were very striking and much fun was gotten out of it. Dancing was indulged in after unmasking and a box lunch was enjoyed and at a late hour all left, well tired out and all pleased with the pleasurable evening.

Masquerades are coming on thick and fast this week. The Camp Fire girls thought they must be fashionable so they gave one Friday evening and they were not to be left in the rear for they all had a lively time.

There was a party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lou Martin Tuesday evening, but this one was to celebrate the birthday of Mr. Martin, and every one spent a very delightful evening.

The people of this place were pained to hear that Mrs. Rhoda Dart, mother of Mrs. Robert Weed, is suffering from a stroke of paralysis. She was a resident of this place for years, where her husband, Dr. I. C. Dart, was a prominent physician. His death occurred several years ago, and the widow has resided in Marlborough and New York with the daughters, Mrs. R. Weed and Mrs. N. LeFevre. Many friends hope to hear favorable reports in regard to the speedy recovery of Mrs. Dart.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Aldrich will move from here very soon and take up their abode in Dutchess county.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Upright had as their guest the week end, Miss Livingston, sister of Mrs. Upright.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rhoades have returned from a pleasure trip to New York city. They combined shopping and theatre-going and from reports they certainly made the most of their time and came home much alive.

There was a masquerade party on Tuesday evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Terwilliger when their daughter, Eugenia, was the hostess. They all had a grand time, including in Halloween costumes. Bountiful refreshments were served, and all hope Eugenia may live to see another October 31, and that she will be as generous as ever in extending to her young friends another pleasure.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Strongman of Lloyd were in Highland Tuesday and in the evening attended the masquerade of the Daughters of America.

Several from this place motored to Milton Saturday evening and attended a chicken supper given there. All speak highly of the affair.

Last Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Merritt gave a Halloween party. There were 30 guests present. The home was decorated with the ordinary Halloween witches, Jack o' lanterns and so forth. A lunch was served, and they enjoyed dancing and stunts suitable for the occasion.

Alfred Palmer of New Jersey has been a guest of his parents for a few days at their home on Grand street.

Miss Susie Lent, who is teaching at Richmond Hill, was the week end guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Lent, on Grand street.

Miss Emma Paltridge motored to Albany Wednesday with a party of friends and had a delightful trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clinton entertained their son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Noah Clinton, of Ossining, last week.

Jean De Reden of New Rochelle was here this place last week, called here by the death of Mrs. J. C. Feeter, mother of Mrs. De Reden.

Mrs. Ernest Haught and her children were in this place last week for a few days, called here for the funeral services of Mrs. J. C. Feeter.

Mr. and Mrs. George Allen of Lloyd were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Orsen Sheeley this week.

Bessie DuBois has returned after a short visit at Beacon, N. Y., with her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. George DuBois.

Mrs. Garlich and children are at home now on Wilcox avenue after a six weeks' visit with relatives out of town.

D. of A. held their regular business session in their council chamber Wednesday evening. It was the time for nominations to be made for their officers. There was a good number out, and a vast amount of business was gone through. These people work together as one in the lodge. There are no bickerings, jealousies or any one person trying to run affairs as is displayed in many orders, which certainly would make it objectionable to belong to such an order, where peace and harmony should reign supreme and harmony is the ideal of the universe, and it seems a pleasure to attend meetings of this society, and we hope they may increase in membership and interest, and do a great deal of good in the community.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. J. C. Feeter took place from the late home last Thursday October 26, and were largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. G. H. Scofield officiated and the Rev. George Allan of Milton, a friend of the family, also took part in the services. The floral emblems were numerous and handsome, showing the high esteem in which she was held. The community at large extend sympathy to the husband and other members of the family in their bereavement. The interment was in Highland cemetery.

Mrs. George Cornell has been ill for a few days. Glad to report she is somewhat better.

Mrs. Amelia Elmendorf of Clintondale has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Cornell on White street.

Mrs. Marie Harne of Clintondale has been visiting relatives in this place this week.

A RENEGADE DOMINIE.

The Rev. S. Banks Nelson, a former Kingston clergyman, who has joined the Democratic spellbinders in Ulster county to save the country for Wilson, is a patriot at heart, but he is a patriot for Canada. Canadian manufacturers, as pointed out by former President Taft, whose interview was published in The Freeman Wednesday night, are deeply interested in Wilson's re-election because they are profiting by the present Underwood tariff, which allows so many articles of Canadian manufacture to enter the United States duty free that American manufacturers cannot compete with the Canadians. Hamilton, Ontario, where the Rev. Mr. Nelson has his pastorate, is a thriving Canadian manufacturing and railroad city that has taken advantage of conditions during the past two years to place itself on a more prosperous basis than that which existed when the European war began two years ago, at which time Canadian manufacturers in general complained of the business depression then existing in the United States, which prevented them from selling enough goods to run on full time. The Canadian business depression at that time and the reason assigned by Canadian manufacturers are known by the writer, who found many Canadian factories in the vicinity of Hamilton closed and others working on part time. Canada is patriotic to the British Crown and is reaping the benefit of the war just as the United States is doing, but Canada is far sighted enough to look ahead to the day when there will be no war, and then it wants the American trade which has increased from $105,000,000 in 1912, before the Underwood tariff law was passed, to $300,000,000 for this year. That is fine for Canada, but it strikes the pocketbook of some of our laboring men whose burdens already are excessive, and the operation of the Underwood tariff to the detriment of American workmen could not be brought home closer than by the case of Canada, which helps to show why the cost of living is higher today than it was three years ago when President Wilson was inaugurated. The prosperity of Hamilton and of the Dominion of Canada should be very dear to the Rev. S. Banks Nelson, and if they can be accomplished by the re-election of President Wilson and a Democratic Congress, he might even be excused—in Canada—for leaving his flock and rooting for Wilson in Ulster county. The American citizen, from laboring man to capitalist, who is paying more for the necessities of life under the Wilson administration than ever before, must, however, question the Rev. Mr. Nelson's right to come into the country which was his by adoption during the time he preached in Ulster county, asking for the support of his own country at the expense of the United States and its workmen. If he be truly a patriot, "Canada first" must necessarily be the Rev. Mr. Nelson's motto, and as an eminent Christian he must live up to it; the motto of every patriotic American citizen must be "America first." Self-preservation is the first law of Nature. The Rev. S. Banks Nelson's activity for the Democratic party "speaks louder than he can."

WHY WE ARE OUT OF WAR.

The force of ex-President Roosevelt's statement that President Wilson instead of keeping us out of war has brought us into the three-milium war, is a common border gains from the arrival of the submarine Deutschland from Bremen, at New London on Wednesday, loaded with supplies and prepared to return to Germany with a cargo of food and other American products now badly needed there. Troubled only by stormy weather, passing safely beneath British war ships, the Deutschland has demonstrated again that the submarine route is practical and feasible.

In the Kilbuck fight that started in Europe more than two years ago every nation realized that the United States must supply the needs of the war. Raw material, munitions, food, clothing, must be supplied by the United States, and since the day war was declared foreign powers have maintained here expensive secret service operatives, bureaus of purchasing, and in a few cases manufacturing plants, not for the benefit of the United States but for their own benefit. For the past two years it has been of the utmost importance to all the warring powers, even as it is yet, that the United States keep at peace, because otherwise supplies would be cut off. The only way the European war would have been with the aid of a jimmy and set of crackerjack's tools, and even then the job would have been hard.

Under these circumstances, is it Wilson who has kept us out of war? The anxiety not to displease the United States would have been manifested openly except for the apologetic secret subservency of the Wilson-Bryan administration, which has sought to take the sting from high-sounding diplomatic notes. The Dumba apology is admitted; the mystery surrounding the supplementary instructions regarding the Lusitania note have not been cleared up frankly and honestly by Wilson and Tamm, while ex-Secretary of War Garrison, who also knows the facts, remains discreetly silent.

No nation now wants war with the United States because all nations are dependent on us to continue their own wars, but will the most fanciful optimist deny a rising tide of envy among potentates whose wealth is now being transported across the Atlantic to enrich this land? In the present European conflict strange alliances were made over night for "self protection." But when the war in Europe shall have ended—where then will the unsunk dreadnaughts and unimpaired submarines with unspent ammunition turn their active noses to recoup their national losses unless they turn toward the shores of America? The war fever shows no sign of abatement or the warring powers of exhaustion. We offer an inviting field to war-maddened marauders to whom coming necessity will know no law. Against the war god seeking to replenish his coffers we present a navy pitiful in its weakness, an army which after many months is not yet recruited to ordinary strength and a government incapacitated by incompetence and recurrent spasms of apologetic indecision which childishly prattles: "I kept you out of war" at a time when no nation on the face of the earth could afford to have us get into war with anybody.

The nationality of the submarine which creeps along the ocean bed to our doors or torpedoes ships almost in the presence of our navy just outside the three-mile limit is not at issue. It is the fact that is paramount. We are accumulating wealth from other nations who some day will demand it. When that demand is made, what record have we that our refusal will be backed by deeds and not mere words? Flowery rhetoric penned by Presidential hand supplemented by Bryanese apologies? Another Baker? Another Daniels? Perhaps—and probably—another Bryan? Are these reassuring?

History does repeat itself. The world knows what happened to Belgium. Are we prepared? Will Henry Ford protect us? Will Bryan? Will Wilson? Is that their record? We want more manhood, less rhetoric; more efficiency, less straddling; more truth, less prating of the untruthful impossibility: "I kept you out of war."

To meet any crisis, public or personal, from dealing with great public questions to accepting Presidential nominations, is it the sturdy record of the indomitable and fearless Hughes or the swashbuckling changeableness of the sophisticated Wilson-Bryan-Baker-Henry Ford aggregation of apologists that appeals to American manhood?

It is Hughes!

It has been Mr. Bryan's fate in public life to be offered up as a sacrifice whenever the occasion required. Since the time his presidential ambitions were crushed on the cross of cold in '96, martyrdom has become a profession with him on an average of every four years. To borrow from current dictation, being made the coat so often may explain Mr. Bryan's propensity for butting in. So it came to pass that when Ambassador Durba was given private assurances that President Wilson's strong note on the Lusitania was merely for home consumption, nobody was surprised thereafter when the responsibility for these assurances was placed upon Mr. Bryan or at the subsequent development when the Secretary of State went out of office unwelcome, unhonored and unsure. Now in the heat of campaign charges and counter-charges over the drafting of these same assurances in a note within a note, the evidence is unmistakable that it was not Bryan but none other than the President himself who wobbled over sending such a postscript to Berlin. Mr. Wilson's denial of Senator Lodge's charges only lends color to the charge that a food, clothing, must be supplied by the United States, and since the day war was declared foreign powers have maintained here expensive secret service operatives, bureaus of purchasing, and in a few cases manufacturing plants, not for the benefit of the United the very highest authority for his verbal communication to the Austrian Ambassador and clearly is entitled to an apology from his countrymen. The credit for threatening Germany if she persisted in taking American lives by submarine warfare and in the next breath telling her to take the notice with a grain of salt belongs only to Woodrow Wilson. It is a most unhappy illustration of the truth that nobody can tell what the President means by what he says so euphoniously and glibly.

He was traveling on a branch railroad in the north. After a series of sudden bumps and unexpected stops he became uneasy.

"Look here," he said to the porter, "is this train safe?"

"It sure am," said the porter. "Well, have they a block system on this road?"

"Block system, sah? We hab de greatest block system in de world. Ten miles back we were blocked with a load of hay, six miles back we were blocked by a mule, just now we were blocked by a cow and I reckon when we get further south we'll be blocked by an alligator." "Block system, boss? Well, Ah should smile."—New York Globe.

I'll Stop Him!" Said He.

A man who had just finished a comfortable meal at a restaurant the other evening suddenly rose from his chair, caught up his hat and umbrella that stood against the wall and rushed out of the building.

"Stop him!" exclaimed the proprietor. "That fellow went out without paying."

"I'll stop him," said a determined looking man who rose up hastily from a table near where the other had sat. "He took my gold-headed umbrella. I'll stop him and I'll bring him back in charge of a police officer, the scoundrel!"

Without a moment's hesitation he dashed out of the house in hot pursuit of the conscienceless villain. And the proprietor, a cold, hard, unsympathetic kind of man, has somehow begun to suspect that neither of them will ever come back.—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

REPUBLICAN RALLY —ROUSING SUCCESS

Able Speakers Discussed Campaign Issues Wednesday Evening at the Republican Rally and Smoker at Griffiths Hall.

The issues of the campaign were fairly and squarely presented by capable speakers on Wednesday evening at the Republican rally and smoker held in Griffiths Hall. The hall was crowded when the meeting was called to order. This was the first rally and smoker held in the lower section of the city this year.

F. E. W. Darro, president in an able manner and introduced Leroy Lounsbury of the district attorney's office who delivered a masterful address calling attention to the fact that while the Democrats are urging the election of Wilson on the grounds that "He kept us out of war," yet the fact remained that during our present trouble with Mexico more American lives have been sacrificed than during the entire war with Spain. Even peace has its long list of dead and wounded. Mr. Lounsbury called attention to the fact that the present prosperity of the country was due solely to the war in Europe and when the war ceases unless we have once more a protective tariff thousands of men will be forced to seek the bread line. The Democrats promised great things with the protective tariff repealed and the speaker asked his hearers if the Democratic Underwood bill had reduced the price of food and clothing. The fact remains and stands undisputed that today we are paying more for the necessities of life under a Democratic administration and so-called "prosperity" than ever before. Mr. Lounsbury closed with an earnest appeal for the election of the entire Republican ticket from top to bottom. He was given a rousing vote of thanks at the close of his address.

Assemblyman Henry R. DeWitt, who was the next speaker, called attention to the record of the Democrats while in power at Albany. Mr. DeWitt spoke of the so-called economy of the Democratic administration and the fact that when the Republicans assumed control they found the state treasury had been riddled by the Democrats and were forced to negotiate a loan of six millions of dollars to carry on the government of the state. He urged the election of Joel Brink to succeed him at Albany and closed with a plea that the entire Republican ticket be placed in office.

The last speaker of the evening was Professor Ellery Stowell, professor of international law at Columbia. Professor Stowell is an associate of John Bassett Moore. The speaker delivered one of the ablest campaign speeches ever heard in Kingston and discussed grave international questions of which he had made a study. His address was an arraignment of the Wilson administration that made his hearers realize the absolute necessity of electing Mr. Hughes.

Several of the county candidates on the Republican ticket were present at the rally and were introduced.

Credit for the success of the rally should be accorded Recorder Lang and Secretary Fred Sahlhoff of the board of health who had arranged the details and secured the speakers of the evening.

"Yes!" or "No!" Mr. Hughes?

The foremost publicists and literary men of the United States, on August first last, addressed you in the following open letter:

TO THE HON. CHARLES E. HUGHES:

The professional writers who sign this letter have small interest in parties but a very deep interest in democracy. It is our hope, through this voluntary association, to assist in the promotion of honest, educational discussion in order that fundamental issues may not be decided in prejudice and ignorance.

Mr. Wilson's beliefs have been expressed in law and in declared policies. He has made an open record by which he may be judged. Wise choice is not possible unless you, yourself, make equally specific statement of purposes and convictions.

Without intent to offend, we feel justified in charging that in no single public utterance have you filed a bona fide bill of particulars, nor have you offered a single constructive suggestion.

Generalities are without value. Blanket criticism is worthless. What we desire to know, what it is fair that the electorate should know, are the exact details of your disagreement with President Wilson.

What has he done that you would not have done, and what has he failed to do that you would have done or proposed to do? Honesty and patriotism demand that you put yourself on record in such a manner as to permit people to judge you as they are now able to judge President Wilson. For example:

- 1—Would you have filed instant protest against the invasion of Belgium and backed up that protest with the United States Navy?
- 2—It is arrant nonsense to talk about action that would have prevented the Lusitania tragedy. The vague advertisement did not appear until shortly before the hour of sailing. The occurrence was one of those things that civilization has made the world regard as incredible. The only honest question is this: Would you have made the disaster the subject of diplomatic negotiations or would you have broken relations with Germany at once?
- 3—Would you have urged upon Congress an embargo upon the shipment of munitions to the allies?
- 4—Would you urge universal compulsory military service?
- 5—You are frank in stating that Huerta's morals were of no concern to America. Does this mean that you would have recognized Huerta?
- 6—As matters stand today, would you be in favor of intervening in Mexico?
- 7—Does your attack upon the Wilson shipping bill mean that you are in favor of ship subsidies?
- 8—You speak enthusiastically of the rights of the worker. Does this imply that you endorse the Clayton Anti-Trust Law and the Seaman's Bill? Or will you urge their repeal?
- 9—What are your specific complaints against the Federal Reserve Law?
- 10—As Governor of New York, you opposed the Income Tax Amendment. Does this antagonism persist? Do you or do you not believe in paying for preparedness out of a tax on incomes, inheritances and munitions?

We agree with you that it is a "critical period," by far too critical, indeed, for candidates to talk in terms of office-seeking rather than in the simple, earnest language of definite Americanism.

Respectfully, (Signed)

"WAR?" Mr. Hughes?

Things have happened since the above questions were asked, Mr. Hughes.

You have stated repeatedly that you and Theodore Roosevelt are in complete accord on all matters.

Colonel Roosevelt says that if he had been President when the Lusitania was sunk he would have sized every ship in our ports flying the German flag.

That would have meant war!

Would you have seized these German ships?

Would you have foregone diplomacy and provoked war with Germany?

As the candidate of a great party for the Presidency you must tell the American people what you would have done.

Your determined silence can mean but one thing:

You would have brought about war!

You can now be proud of your State Government!

You can very well have a feeling of pride in what your State Government has accomplished during the past two years under the leadership of Governor Charles S. Whitman.

Your present State officials came into office facing a condition of administrative and financial wreck, left by the three preceding administrations, that had never been equalled in the history of the State.

They overcame the handicaps of disorganization, of demoralization of departments, and of political misrule that had grown up during the preceding four years.

They rebuilt your State Government along systematic, businesslike lines, and by quiet, earnest work they restored it to a basis of common sense efficiency in a way that deserves your approval and support.

The present administration has been notable for a large number of quiet victories for good government.

Three years ago no man in this State could be proud of his State Government!

TODAY you can examine the record that has been made during the past two years with pride and satisfaction—for the present administration has made good!

IT DESERVES YOUR SUPPORT at the polls no matter what your "politics" may be.

This report was accepted with

Mrs. Chandler then gave a brief report of the work of the Civilian Relief Committee stating that through its operation 23 families received assistance from June 19, to August 9. All of these families were personally visited by the committee, and through the valuable assistance of Mrs. Mac Millan of the Bureau of Social Service, a card index was made out of all cases the same being kept for reference. The response of the people to the call for aid had been most generous and prompt. Inasmuch as the Circle of Mercy were doing war relief work, the $25 contributed by them had been returned to them, their need at present being greater than that of the Civilian Relief Committee.

Mrs. Meagher, chairman of the Military Relief Committee, told of the many contributions other than those of money, received, especially the sixty bed sacks. The funds had been expended for the good of the men while away from their homes.

It was voted that each of the above reports be read with thanks and the hearty appreciation of the chapter for all the efficient work which they represented.

After careful discussion it was further voted that both of these funds be kept intact as already designated, until such time as there was assurance that our men would not be called out again. It was further decided that these funds should be placed, by the treasurer, in a savings bank to draw interest.

The present vote to appropriate the sum of $10 for the purchase of Red Cross Christmas seals this coming season.

Communications from the National Red Cross were read to the effect that from now on, Albert W. Staub, Superintendent of the Receiving and Shipping station at the Bush Terminal, Brooklyn, will open an office in the Metropolitan Tower, New York, where in addition to his former duties he will be prepared to give out any necessary information regarding European needs, etc. The second of these communications had to do with the Red Cross Magazine, which it has been decided upon to greatly improve in many ways. In order to correct this improvement, the Executive Committee of the National Body will meet at the by-laws at the next meeting of the General Board, as to provide that thereafter dues of $2 annually, will include the magazine for a year. One-half of this amount being for the maintenance of the magazine and the other half being treated as dues have been treated. The fee for annual membership in the American Red Cross will remain as at present but the $1 will not carry with it the magazine.

The motion was made and carried that hereafter the time for payment of annual dues should be the first of November, the date of annual meeting, and that all dues received during the year be considered as in payment for that current year, ending October 31.

One of the most important matters taken up by the Chapter, was that of forming, as soon as may be, "First Aid" classes for both men and women. As it was known that Major Chandler was already interested in such a movement and would gladly take up the work on his return, it was decided that such action should be seriously considered, with the expectation of forming such classes in the winter.

The meeting closed with the election of officers which resulted as follows: Chairman, Mrs. C. N. Reed; vice-chairman, Frank R. Powley; secretary, J. M. Schaeffer; executive committee, the officers and Sylvanus Van Aken, Port Ewen; J. E. Mahan, Mrs. George Chandler, Mrs. Frank Meagher, Dr. Mary Gage-Day, Mrs. T. J. Hickey.

NICHOLS POPULAR IN ULSTER COUNTY

Republican Candidate for Supreme Court Bench is Practicing Lawyer of Ability and Standing in This Judicial District—Well Known in Kingston.

Charles E. Nichols, who has received one of the two Republican nominations for Justice of the Supreme Court in the Third Judicial District, is well known throughout Ulster county, which he has visited on countless occasions and where he always has been a welcome visitor.

Mr. Nichols resides in Schoharie county, where he was born in 1862. After receiving his early education in the common schools he attended the Delaware Literary Institute at Franklin, N. Y., from which he was graduated in 1882. He read law in the office of the late Senator Hobart Krum at Schoharie. Senator Krum represented the Schoharie county district in the State Senate for a number of terms and throughout the state he was regarded as one of the most capable among the numerous eminent lawyers which Schoharie county has produced. Mr. Nichols was admitted to the bar in 1885, since which time he has practiced there and in the other counties of the Third Judicial District. His practice has been large and for many years he has appeared on one side or the other in the trial of most of the important litigation in that county.

When the legislature created another Justice of the Supreme Court in the Third District, Mr. Nichols was at once prominently mentioned for the nomination, which concededly belonged to Schoharie, which has no resident justice and whose lawyers and litigants must travel to Albany or Binghamton on all ex parte matters. Special terms, which are held in Ulster county twice a month, are held in Schoharie only in connection with the opening of the three trial terms which are held there each year.

Mr. Nichols always has been a Republican and since 1884 has been an active campaign speaker, speaking in every campaign for his party, and during that period he has spoken in most of the counties in this state. He has visited Ulster county repeatedly to speak in the interests of his party and his oratorical ability is well known. At the time of his designation he was chairman of the Schoharie County Republican Committee but upon his designation he immediately resigned that position.

Besides law, in whose principles he is well versed, Mr. Nichols has participated actively in various business enterprises and he is a director of the National Bank of New York and Ulster county. Since his youth he has been an active member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Socially he is affiliated with the Masonic fraternity and for two terms served as District Deputy Grand Master in the Eighteenth Masonic District.

Mr. Nichols is married and has two children: a daughter, Grace, who graduated from Vassar College in June of this year, and a son, Charles E. Nichols, Jr., who is a Sophomore in Yale University.

ELLENVILLE

Ellenville, Nov. 2.—Mrs. Henry Horton, whose musical activity in Ellenville the past summer is bringing such splendid results through the efforts of the musical club of which she is president, writes from New York, where she is professionally engaged as an accompanist, the following: Ellenville is justly proud of her distinguished one time citizen, Homer N. Bartlett, who today occupies a foremost place in the ranks of truly American composers. Years ago our subject lived in Ellenville on Maple avenue, the home now owned by the Irvin family, and Bartlett street was named after the family. This mastery of harmony and counterpoint make his gift for composition the more complete today. It would be impossible at this time to dwell at length upon his compositions but of his latest and perhaps greatest work his Ellenville and Ulster county readers will be interested to hear. It is his "Apollo" Symphony or symphonic poem built upon subjects taken from "Homer's Iliad." We have the Jupiter motive, then Vulcan and a question or curiosity motive attributed to "Juno" and the goddesses (1916 women may resent the application). Towards the end of this twenty-five minute symphony one hears these and other themes curiously treated in rather unusual harmonies until the grand climax is reached. The place of honor on the program of the New York Orchestral Society is given this new and original composition to be given for the first time on Sunday, November 5. In the afternoon at the Cort Theater, New York the regular orchestra of sixty has been augmented to sixty-five for this occasion. We pay our respects to an American composer whose previous works have brought him renown both at home and abroad, and particularly in Ulster county. We do not want our prophet to be without honor, who at 17 years composed his popular "Polka de Concert," which has had a tremendous sale, and for thirty years Mr. Bartlett was organist of the Madison Avenue Baptist Church, New York, but now gives his entire time to composition. He is much interested in what we are trying to do musically. As a result of a delightful interview with him, Mr. Bartlett's arrangement, Star Spangled Banner, a part song for women's voices, will be done by the musical club for the community Christmas.

The Women's Club announce for their meeting on Monday afternoon next at 4 o'clock a free illustrated lecture, to be given at the high school auditorium, by Mrs. E. E. Court on "Bulgarian Costume." This will be an opportunity to hear about a country that is so prominently before the public eye and see illustrated its manners, customs and home life of the people.

The Woman's Suffrage Club, which held its meeting at Edgebrook Club House Tuesday afternoon, had a large attendance of members and friends. Mrs. Holman, the efficient president, presided. Mrs. B. M. Taylor, secretary, read the report of the last meeting. Mrs. G. F. Andrews, treasurer, was unable to be present on account of illness. Mrs. Holman introduced Mrs. A. Gordon Norrie of Staatsburg, chairman of the 10th district of the state, who addressed the ladies, who enjoyed the very excellent and most helpful address couched with much that was of profit to all in attendance. ## Riches and Fame First, Then She'll Get Married

Mae Marsh, Young, Beautiful, Beloved of Film Fandom; Says She'll Wait Till She's Thirty, Anyway, Before She Acquires a Husband.

HOW do you like this idea for arranging your life: Get all your work done in your youth; grab fame, money and then marry and rear a family, releasing fame from your grasp and finding joy in a quiet, secluded country home? Not so bad, you say, for some bookish individual who isn't attractive anyhow and hasn't a chance at the sweets of life? But utterly preposterous for anybody the gods have favored with beauty and talents, vivacity and charm.

Yes, well, now I give you three guesses as to who has laid out this life program for herself. No, it's not a female professor of mathematics; not a writer on "The Parallelism Between Morphology and Characterology"; not even a suffragette; but a very lovely young person by the name of Mae Marsh, idol of 2,000,000 screen fans—the girl who figures so thrillingly in "The Birth of a Nation," running for her life through the landscape and plunging off the cliff to escape her pursuer!

Too Busy For Love Affairs.

Yes, sir, Little Mae Marsh, the blue-eyed, the golden-haired, the adored, the flattered, the pursued, the girl whom David Griffith calls the Bernhardt of the movies because she puts more electrical temperament into ten feet of film than lots of 'em do in ten thousand. The girl who has no "up stage" manner, no airs, no egotism, no fur-topped boots, no lip rouge.

If that time old question of personality and the stage is still up for discussion those of the opposing side are lucky not to see Miss Marsh if they are bent on keeping up their end of the argument, for at the first glance and after a minute's conversation any one must recognize that this girl from California is the replica of the loving, lovable, earnest, playful little sister immortalized in Mr. Griffith's great civil war play. In the first place, she is scarcely older than that, even now, when she is within hailing distance of her twenties.

There is the same dignity that just escapes being primness and that same comeliness and vivacity, that same alternating repression and expression of emotion that make the girl of the screen so adorable and that go so far in the making of one of the most splendidly developed climates that have characterized any play on stage or screen in a long, long time.

There is apparently no pretense about Miss Marsh. Quiet and unassuming, she nevertheless is fully appreciative of the advantages that have been hers without depreciating the qualities in herself that have impelled her to make the most of those advantages. And when one has that sense so well developed and the ability she so evidently has to weigh possibilities and possibilities, it is an invaluable asset.

Most people think love and marriage belong exclusively to youth," says she. "Now I know better. Youth is the time to work. You can't work when your mind is on love affairs."

"Of course for some women marriage is a career. Then it's all right to go into it young and make a success of it just as a man makes a success of his business or an actor goes after fame in his profession."

"But for me—NOT! I've watched my sisters in their love affairs and marriages, and believe me, it fills their lives. There isn't room for any other career."

"Why isn't it better to put all your energy when you're young into work that will leave you free at thirty-five to take up something entirely different and use a whole new set of talents and interests? Won't I be a better wife and mother at thirty or thirty-five than I would be at twenty?"

Expects Wisdom Later.

"In order to be successful in any money earning career you must have energy, youth, sparkle. You don't need wisdom especially. But you do need it to be a good wife and mother. Don't you see I'm right?"

Miss Marsh could make you see anything, she's that earnest and full of what Jimmie would call "punch."

It is to that quality she owes her quick rise to stardom from the humble position of "extra girl" out on the coast. However little she had to do, she managed to put "pep" into it.

Her motto seems to have been, "Whatever you do do it with vim no matter if you do have to lie down with the smelling salts under your nose and a wet towel on your head afterward."

"All my life I've realized that in order to put things over you've got to do them with spirit," goes on the little film lady. "I used to spank my dolls energetically. I used to do everything 'as hard as I could.' When I left school to be an 'extra girl' in Mr. Griffith's company five years ago how my classmates sneered!"

She'll Be Gay at Sixty.

"Now those very same girls, many of them married and the mothers of children, shower me with notes of admiration, lavishing me to all sorts of social functions. But if there's anything on this earth I can't bear it is society doings."

"Pink teas, dog shows, tango parties and receptions are my idea of nothing. Maybe when I'm sixty I'll devote myself to dress, dances and dinner parties. But for now give me sensible things, lots of work and a typewriter to compose plays on and I ask nothing more."

"I am in my right sphere," she says, "and so, naturally, I am happy. I never have gone through the shifting process of so many girls who are set to earn their own living, going from one kind of occupation to another, because, you see, I knew exactly what I wanted to do and I made for it, although—laughing—she has known it took some courage, or, rather, it would have taken courage, had I been of a wavering disposition."

She is still frail looking and still slender, but graceful as a fawn and with some of that pretty creature's characteristics—the quick intelligence, quick movements, alertness, and when she is off guard, when she forgets she is being interviewed, when she is not constantly reminded by the whispers and stares of passers-by that she is a heroine of the films, she is entirely natural. Apropos of that, she says it is on the screen that she is really her most natural self and that it is in conventional life she finds herself acting.

"I suppose," she says, "that sort of subconsciously I have the idea that I must show a difference in my manner, but I have done so much of the picture work and so thrown myself heart and soul into it that it is really difficult for me to separate myself from it."

"But"—with the little quizzical look that suggests laughter and tears and other things at the same time—"I suppose it's that way with every one who makes any sort of success out of what he undertakes, though my work is really nothing more than play to me, because I am so enthusiastic about it. I shall be perfectly content to be a moving picture actress all my days; that is—basically—provided I can continue to live in California."

"I wrote Mr. Griffith that Rockefeller has nothing on me."

Mae Marsh sent a gay little glance across the top of a glass of raspberry paraffin.

"Then it pays to be a motion picture actress?"

"It pays so well that the first week I worked at it I wouldn't speak to any of the girls I had gone to school with."

"What was the sum that made a plutocrat of you?"

"Three dollars a day. I was sixteen. I had gone into the studio where my older sister was posing, and when she wasn't looking I applied for a job. They told me to come back and see Mr. Griffith. I did, and got a job. So you see it isn't true that Mr. Griffith saw me playing about the studio and saw possibilities of an actress in me. I saw him working at the studio and saw my future possibilities in him."

Then she ceased jesting and became a serious young person, as she is—well, half the time. That she can be tremendously serious every one who has seen the little Southern girl in "The Birth of a Nation" knows. Mae Marsh looked as pensive as any pictured Madonna when she spoke of that tragic picture.

"I did the three scenes—my flight, my fall on the rocks and my death scene at home—in one afternoon," she said. "What an afternoon's work that was! I went home and went straight to bed without dinner. I couldn't eat. And I stayed in bed right round the clock, twelve hours, to catch up in the race with my strength. Walter Long, the young man who plays the villain, is a good friend of mine and a dear, nice chap, but when I looked over my shoulder and saw him, his face blackened, rushing toward me I looked down the big rock and was really ready to jump from fright."

"But about you and Mr. Rockefeller?" I urged.

The California girl who has become so great a favorite in the pictures and who, D. W. Griffith predicts, will become a still greater one, sat primly in her chair and tried to look pompous. It was an effort that failed. Her face broke into an eddy of smiles and dimples.

"I'm on a vacation," she said proudly. "I was allowed to come away for a month, on salary, too, just as though I were working. Having the salary while not working, I spent it. I had automobiles and flowers and went about shopping and sightseeing. We stayed at Brown's Palace, Denver. Mr. John D. Rockefeller was staying there. My automobile drew up behind his at the curb. It was as fine as his. I ate in the same dining room as he. One day I sat at the table next to his."

She drew her face into solemn lines to make me believe she was profoundly impressed by her proximity to the multimillionaire of the mining troubles. But she was not in the least impressed. If ever a girl belonged to the democracy of those who do it in Mae Marsh. But she overflowed with the spirits of twenty, and her vacation was an event of huge importance to her, as little events are when we are not big in years.

"Suppose you tell me something about Mae Marsh for those who want to know more about her?"

"I began—that is, I was born in Madrid, New Mexico. My father was an auditor of the Santa Fe Railroad and we lived in a lot of places while I was little. My earliest recollection is of sitting on the cabin floor in a Mexican cabin and eating tortillas. Mother says I spoke Mexican beautifully, only no one at home could understand me."

"I have a very vivid recollection of the San Francisco earthquake. I was at school at the Sacred Heart Convent. Something heavy came crashing down upon me. I cried: 'Oh, don't! Don't, sister! I won't do it again.' I thought one of the sisters was spanking me. We were taken into the yard, and after an hour and a half mother came for us. She had walked across San Francisco to get us. We lived in a tent. I thought that was lots of fun. Mother paid $25 the first day for food. The next we didn't have anything to eat. We lived out of doors for three days in Golden Gate Park. I saw a man shot for stealing a drink of water."

"Then we moved to Los Angeles. My sister went into moving pictures, and I followed her. That was four years ago, when I was sixteen. The first work that won recognition for me was Applepie Mary in 'Home, Sweet Home.' I am the mother now in 'The Mother and the Law' or 'Tolerance.' It is not quite certain what it will be called. I am a mother at the same age I am now, twenty. It is being taken over again after we worked on it a year. Mr. Griffith wasn't satisfied with it. He is a most wonderful man, a genius. We players call him father. He calls us children."

The conversation shifted to faith, usually to faith in prayer.

"When I have prayed for anything I have always gotten it"—again Mae Marsh was seriousness itself—"provided I was good."

FOUR TONS OF DYNAMITE.

William Hanley of This City Exploded Big Charge on Monday at Nassau.

William Hanley of this city, father of Police Sergeant Hanley, is in charge of the Rensselaer Stone Company's quarries at East Nassau. On Monday he exploded one of the largest charges of dynamite set off in that part of the state. He had his men drill 9 one hundred foot six inch holes in which were placed 2,400 pounds of dynamite. The explosion threw out 33,500 tons of rock.

Suffragettes Hold Meeting.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Ulster County Suffrage Organization was held at the home of Mrs. M. J. Michael, Maiden Lane, Wednesday afternoon at which Mrs. Gordon Norrie, county superintendent, presided. In the evening at Mrs. Michael's home, the Kingston Women's Suffrage Organization held its regular meeting which was addressed by Mrs. W. C. Hutton of Poughkeepsie and Miss Grace Hutton of Milton. The speakers gave exhibit consisted of work, pencil drawings, raffia work, etc.

Although the children did not win any prizes on their bees they felt well repaid for their efforts on hearing the praise they received for their school work. The interest the children took in the contest is shown by the number that had bees to bring as there were eleven to enter the contest, the largest of any school.

Last year Mr. Wheeler, a member of the Means and Ways Committee was at the exhibit and saw the work done by the school. He was greatly pleased with it and had Miss Devine, the teacher, send it to Albany, where it was placed in the Educational Building to show what can be done in a rural school with but one teacher. It remained in Albany all year for inspection.

JUDGE HOWARD IS ON SIX TICKETS

Splendid Record of Troy Justice Recognized by Leading Political Parties Without Regard to Partisanship—Fought His Way Up Ladder.

Supreme Court Justice Wesley O. Howard is the candidate for re-election of the Republican, Democratic, Progressive, Prohibition, American parties, and the Independence League.

No other Justice of the Supreme Court residing outside the bounds of Ulster county ever has had such a large personal acquaintance in Ulster county as Judge Howard. For nine years he came to Kingston to hold two terms of court each year and his popularity with the lawyers and laymen was attested by the number of cases disposed of at each term.

For many years Judge Howard has been a close student, and the spirit underlying all his written and spoken opinions shows close application to an effort to ascertain the connecting link between cause and result, between result and cause. As a youth the lesson that certain causes are followed by certain results was forced on his attention—he was a poor boy.

He began absorbing what knowledge was obtainable in the schools of his native town of Grafton, Rensselaer county. From the Grafton School he entered Lansingburgh Academy, and on the advice of Professor Smith of that institution, after he had bested the professor in debate on the great political questions of that day, he decided to study law, instead of medicine, as he had intended. He was admitted to the bar in 1889 and immediately began practicing at Troy.

In 1894 ex-Governor Frank S. Black, then attorney for the Committee of Safety, selected him as his aid in the prosecution of election frauds. Two years later he was elected District Attorney, and three years later he was re-elected, defeating John T. Norton of Troy, who is now the Democratic candidate for Associate Justice of the Court of Appeals.

During his six years as District Attorney, he never lost a case—a record probably unequalled in the state of New York. In two cases the jury disagreed on the first trial, but convicted upon a retrial. When Judge Edgar L. Fursman resigned, Judge Howard was elected by Governor Odell for appointment to succeed him, and in 1902 he was overwhelmingly elected Justice of the Supreme Court for the full term. For the past five years he has been serving by appointment as a member of the Appellate Division for the Third Judicial Department. When not busy untangling the intricacies of the law, Judge Howard spends his time on his 350 acre farm at Grafton. The forests on his farm are extensive and they will remain so as long as he lives. His notion of the correct way to live is to keep close to nature.

There is hardly a subject of public importance upon which at some time Judge Howard has not expressed a clear and comprehensive opinion; almost always he has been a pioneer. As masterpieces of clear, concise and elegant English, his speeches and opinions take first rank. As a trial judge he is regarded so highly that the lawyers of the Third Judicial District, big and little, irrespective of political affiliation, early in the present year began a movement to secure his unanimous re-nomination and re-election, in conformity with the policy long ago urged by the National Bar Association and the New York State Bar Association. The movement became state-wide and resolutions adopted by Bar Associations outside the Third District were presented to each of the political nominating committees.

Judge Howard's utterances are penetrating. Although himself a lawyer and jurist of many years' eminent standing, he never has failed to notice the cankers which have created criticism of the legal system, and of all men in the public eye, his views most nearly coincide with those expressed by former President Taft in regard to the law's delays and defects, and like him, Judge Howard has done everything within his power to bring about a new era.

Henry T. Keener, a young man of Saugerties and whose only employment since he concluded his school work has been with The Saugerties Bank, has been nominated by the Democratic and Progressive parties for the office of County Treasurer.

San Felice Cigars

FIVE CENTS STRAIGHT AND WORTH IT!

Owing to the greatly increased cost of quality tobaccos, in fact, everything pertaining to high grade cigars, the makers of the San Felice cigar, The Deisel-Wemmer Company, have advanced the selling price to the Jobbers and Dealers, and henceforth this cigar will positively be sold to the consumer at 5 cents straight instead of six for a quarter, as previously.

The SAN FELICE is national in its scope and character, having justly attained this eminence through its unexcelled excellence. To maintain this unequalled standard of quality, the advance in question is absolutely unavoidable. The generous support of all men using quality cigars is earnestly desired.

He is a member of the Business Men's Association, Ulster Lodge, No. 103, P. & A. M., Forest Lake Club, Automobile Club of Ulster county, is an ardent volunteer fireman, and is a deacon of the Reformed Church of Saugerties.

Mr. Keener is making a very thorough campaign and may be expected through this section of the county before Election Day.

Prayer service will be held in the Reformed and Methodist Churches this evening at 7:30 o'clock.

ILLUSTRATION OF TRAP NEST

Devices Intended to Assist Poultry Breeder to Find Out Best Layers and Keep Pedigrees.

This is an illustration of a trap nest—not a guillotine. It is designed to help the poultry breeder to find out his good layers and to keep pedigrees. It is very simple. It may be attached to the under side of the dropping board, with the front facing the pen and arranged so that it can be easily removed. The dropping board will then be the roof of the nest.

The rear of the nest may be of wire for the sake of ventilation. If the nest is placed on the wall, slats or wire should be inserted from the front of the nest to the wall at a sharp angle to prevent the hen from roosting on the nest. When she enters the nest, the hen's back raises the door, which releases the catch and allows the door to shut. The catch should be set so that its edge just holds the door, the position being regulated by a screw or nut at the lower inside edge of the catch. A washer on the screw will prevent it from sticking. The guard around the catch holds the nesting material away. The nest should be visited frequently to release the hens.

DUCKS THRIVE ON SOFT FOOD

Nutritive Organs Not Adapted to Whole Grains—Give Them Green Feed in Abundance.

The duck's nutritive organs are not adapted to whole grains. The natural diet of ducks is soft food, worms and bugs, from the banks and marshes. For best development, ducks should have soft feed, always accompanied by water in pans deep enough to permit them to submerge the beak to the eyes. Give them lettuce, spinach, beet tops, onion tops, weeds—green food of some kind in abundance.

For a few ducks the vegetable parings may be boiled and fed with mash; small potatoes, not to exceed a fifth of the mash, may be used. Too many potatoes are not good.

For stock ducks in autumn and early winter, an excellent ration is equal parts of cornmeal, wheat bran and boiled vegetables, with 10 per cent of beef scrap fed morning and evening; at noon a little cracked corn, wheat or oats. When the birds begin to lay, increase the proportion of meal and scrap, and add low-grade flour, making a mash about as follows: Meal, one part; bran, one part; low-grade flour, one part; vegetables, one part, with from 12 to 15 per cent of beef scrap.

GOOD REMEDY FOR GAPEWORM

Parasites Are Usually Found in Poultry Raised on Low Land—Plow Infected Areas.

Gapeworms are commonly found in poultry raised on low land; they may be seen attached to the walls of the windpipe. For treatment restrict the birds to well-drained quarters and plow the infected areas. Individual treatment necessitates the removal of the worms. By a feather moistened with turpentine swab out the windpipe.

RATION FOR GROWING CHICKS

Good Dry Mash Is Made of Mixture of Cornmeal, Wheat, Bran and High-Grade Beef Scraps.

A good dry mash for feeding growing chicks in hoppers is made of one part cornmeal, two parts wheat bran and half a part of high-grade beef scraps, though most any mixture of ground grains which does not include too much fattening material will prove satisfactory for this purpose if the chicks are on free range.

RANGE FOR BREEDING DUCKS

Fowls Should Not Be Confined During Balance of Season—Do Well Without Swimming.

The ducks which are intended for next year's breeders should be allowed to have free range during the rest of the season and if there is a place for them to swim, it will be better for them, though they do well without swimming.

MUSIC TEACHERS' EFFECTIVE WORK

Small Instructors Do Much For Art's Advancement.

LEIFELS PRAISES THEM

Manager of Famous Philharmonic Orchestra, Which Readers May Hear, Speaks of Assistance Rendered by Hidden Musicians—Credit For Bringing Orchestra to Smaller Towns Reflects on Them.

Felix F. Leifels, manager of The New York Philharmonic Orchestra, which is to be heard by our readers in the course of its tour, thinks that there are any number of really great figures among the unknown musicians who are living here in America, who are doing a great deal toward the advancement of American music in a democratic way.

Mr. Leifels has had a wide experience as the manager of the oldest musical organization in America, and his remarks on the subject of individuals who have helped the cause of music in America are something of a revelation.

"I have discovered," said Mr. Leifels, "on the extensive tours of The Philharmonic, that people who give themselves most unselfishly to the further development of music in this country are the small music teachers in the small towns all over the United States. They have been of wonderful assistance to The Philharmonic Orchestra. For example, they form clubs all over the country, particularly in the West and South, and they influence their pupils to attend concerts.

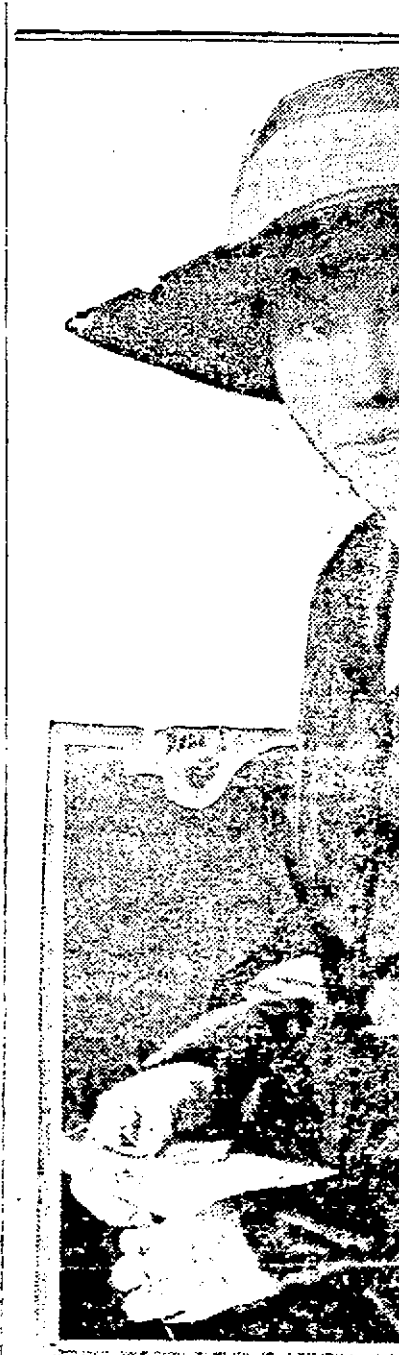

"Most of them will never be heard of. The majority of them are underpaid women who teach for fifty or seventy-five cents an hour. Nor do they confine their interests to concerts. They put their heart and soul into every musical movement that it is possible to bring to their town. They form a nucleus, which is looked up to by the inhabitants of their little city whenever anything in the way of music comes there.

"So, in a way, they are repaid for their interest in a concert like that given by The New York Philharmonic. The credit for bringing the orchestra there reflects back on them.

"Nevertheless, the motives behind their efforts are absolutely unselfish. They are the real builders of music in America. In many of the small towns, perhaps only one person, a zealous enthusiast, is responsible for any musical progress in the community."

MISS NORA CONNOLLY
GIRL SAYS BRITISH EXECUTED WOUNDED IRISH REBEL

New York, Nov. 2.—Miss Nora Connolly, whose father was executed by the English for his part in the Easter uprising of the Sinn Féin in Ireland, is taking an active part in raising Irish revolutionary funds. Miss Connolly tells a very pathetic story of her last meeting with her father just before he was court-martialed.

"I had hoped they would observe the rules of war," Miss Connolly said, "and not execute a wounded man, when he told me they had propped him up in bed to conduct a court-martial, I knew it was all over. He said to me:

"It was a good, clean, glorious fight. I am dying, but I have lived to see the dawn."

REMEMBER

While the kind and style of a monument may be in good taste poor lettering will spoil the whole effect. Lettering is one of our particularly strong features. We always have a most select line of semi-finished stones from which a satisfactory selection is almost certain. Step in and see our display and learn our prices.

A Clean Record. "What makes this so good of us ancestors? I never heard any of them did anything."

"That's exactly the point. So many persons' ancestors did do things which got them into trouble with the police."

GERMANS EVACUATE STEEL REACHES FORT VAUX NEW HIGH RECORD

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Nov. 2.—Verdun swings into the war's limelight today with a striking reverse for the Germans. After the French had bombarded Fort Vaux, on the east side of the Meuse, for two days and two nights with a devastating fire from hundreds of massed pieces of artillery, the Germans unexpectedly evacuated the work in the night. The Germans blew up the most important part of the fort that had been left standing before they abandoned it.

The evacuation of Fort Vaux places the German lines northeast of Verdun the same as they were on February 25.

An extraordinary feature of this brilliant success for the French was that the French war office made no mention of the evacuation of Fort Vaux in the communique issued at noon. It was the German war office which admitted the abandonment of the fort.

The loss of Fort Vaux is the most serious reverse suffered by the Germans on the Verdun front with the exception of the loss of Fort Douaumont. In all the months of battles around Verdun, during the many months of the offensive campaign of the German crown prince, Forts Douaumont and Vaux were the only two of the works defending the city that the Germans were able to conquer.

Many thousands of men were lost and countless tons of steel projectiles were fired to gain what the Germans have lost in the past two weeks of fighting on the Verdun front.

Fighting of a deadlock nature, in which both sides have made gains, is in progress on the eastern front, the Rumanian front and the Macedonian front.

The evacuation of Fort Vaux is confirmed by wireless from Berlin.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Nov. 2.—The execution of heavy buying orders in U. S. Steel Common at the opening of the stock market today quickly forced the price up to 122 1/4, the highest price ever reached. For a time the common and preferred sold at the same figure, but the preferred jumped to 122 3/4.

The strength in the Steel issues was reflected throughout the entire list and many prominent stocks moved up.

COACH STAGG AND NELSON NORGREN.

Kicking, particularly punting, is among the decadent arts of football. This, at least, is the opinion of Coach A. A. Stagg, who holds forth at the University of Chicago, and as he has seen kickers, good, bad and indifferent for a matter of thirty odd years, his words bear considerable part of authority on the subject, writes Lambert Sullivan in Chicago News.

Stagg declares the players of the present day are not kickers like the heroes of bygone generations, because they have too little time to devote to practice at the art.

Importance Has Been Lessened.

"Kicking is relatively a less important part of football now than it was in the early stages of the game," he declared. "When a yard or a foot was an important factor in determining the result of a game a good punter was a big share of a team's defensive strength. He is, of course, a factor now, but with rules which permit teams to rush the ball more easily than in days of old he is not so great a factor in the results. A team which has an inferior kicker can make up for this deficiency in other ways far more easily than it could in the old days."

"I remember when I played at Yale that the kickers of the team were given thorough practice both morning and afternoon, and some of the more ambitious continued their training not only in season but daily throughout the year. The result of that work may easily be imagined; the punter knew every quarter inch of the pignikin and controlled the ball with an accuracy which would be regarded nowadays as positively uncanny. The great object then, as it is now, was to get the ball outside and well down the field. In those days the punters were able to tell almost the exact inch of the side line over which the ball would fall."

Richards Was a Star.

"The star of kickers when I played at Yale was Gene Richards, who reached the height of his career in 1886. His work, as that of others of this period, was the result of this daily practice method and undoubtedly he was one of the wonders of the game at punting. In those days the only punt used was what was called the 'tumbler,' a kick seldom seen nowadays. In kicking this, the ball was held with its longitudinal axis at an angle of about 60 degrees to the ground and the kick was not straight, but was delivered with a sort of side-swing with the foot. The result was what we used to call 'kicking the bottom out of the ball' and when in flight the oval turned twisters and dipoles without any apparent regularity in its turning."

"This resulted in an extremely mean ball for the catcher to handle and produced a greater amount of fumbling than the present-day spiral. It took a lot of work to become proficient in its use, however, which I believe is the principal reason it no longer is seen. The only fall harder to judge than the 'tumbler' is the 'foater,' a ball which seems to float on the wind, and which it is absolutely impossible to judge. This ball, however, is one of the freaks of the game and is the result of accident rather than design."

"Pigeon-Toed Kickers."

"To the best of my recollection, the first spiral punt I ever saw was made by Clarence Herschberger. I was trying to teach Hershy the 'tumbler,' but he could not seem to get the hang of it. Instead of swinging his foot over for a sideswipe and hitting the ball on the inside of his instep, he drove his foot straight out and caught the ball on the outside of his instep, imparting a twisting motion to the ball. We all ascribed Hershy's inability to master the 'tumbler' to the fact that he was pigeon toed and I guess his pointed toes have had a great deal to do with influencing subsequent kicking history to the middle West."

"When I discovered that it was impossible to teach Hershy the tumbler method I let him go ahead in his own style, and I guess it's a lucky thing I did, for his punts won us many a game after that. At the same time Pat O'Doe started setting things afire at Wisconsin with his kicking, and as both he and Hershy used the spiral, that kick has been the rule ever since, for, in addition to being easier to kick, it can be controlled more readily and is almost as difficult as the 'tumbler' to handle."

Norgren Effective Kicker.

"Regarding Hershy and O'Doe, the rivalry between them was unique in the West. O'Doe probably would get better distance out of his efforts, but he was a slow kicker, and when an opponent hurried him he lost much of his effectiveness. O'Doe's longest kicks were against teams with weak ends while Herschberger had the faculty of kicking about the same against all opponents."

"Of the modern kickers, I think Nelson Norgren was the best I ever have seen. Norgren, while he was not a spectacular punter and on several occasions was outdistanced, had wonderful control over the oval. He was one of the few men who knew just where the ball was going and fortified with this knowledge, his ends seldom failed to nab the runner the minute the ball came down. In addition to this, he got his kicks off faster than anyone I have seen in years and put them so far up in the air that even a moderately fast pair of ends had no difficulty in getting down under them."

After all, as we get it, to be a successful baseball player is merely a combination of dollars and cents.

Yougotta admit John McGraw's a great manager, but he's no stronger than Harry Hempstead's checkbook.

McGraw has tied a string to Jim Thorpe so often that the chief is beginning to resemble a department store parcel.

Manager Mathewson of Cincinnati frankly remarks that the Red pitching staff will have to be considerably changed for next season.

Lyle Sloan, the southpaw pitching find dug up by Clyde Milen from Linden, Tenn., has been released by the Washington club to Nashville.

It is a happy ending for Carrigan's baseball career if he decides that he has had enough of the grind of winning honors in the baseball world.

Wilder, a substitute halfback of Kansas State Aggies, ran 75 yards for a touchdown in a game against Southwestern college at Manhattan, Kan.

They do say that young Billy Gleason, Pittsburgh's new second baseman secured from Lynn, has a reputation of being one of the scrappiest players in baseball.

Napoleon Lajoie is considering an offer which will end his big league career and make him a manager and manager in the Class AA minors, if he accepts it.

Manager Robinson has had some world's series experience before. He was an assistant to John McGraw when the Giants played the Athletics for the big honors.

Easily Settled.

"Be easy," said a rich merchant to a faint finding son-in-law, who was perpetually pestering him with complaints of his wife's shortcomings. "As her behavior is so intolerable, I will alter my will and cut her off with a shilling." The old man heard no more of his daughter's failings.

Named to $4,500 Position.

Charles Alonzo Simmons, a former Rochester man and for several years connected with the Ithaca Chamber of Commerce, has been named secretary of the Poughkeepsie Chamber of Commerce at a salary of $4,500 a year.

THE INTERIOR OF A SUBMARINE, AND ABOVE, THE LOCATION OF THE SURFACE.

According to experts, the Spanish submarine Isaac Peral, built by the Submarine Boat Corporation and now undergoing trials at Provincetown, Mass., is the identical counterpart of the German U-boats Deutschland and U-53 insofar as mechanism is concerned. In the case of the Deutschland there are some differences in the general shape and inner arrangement of compartments.

It is asserted by Mr. Carse, president of the Submarine Boat Corporation, that sub-sea boats built by that corporation for England crossed the ocean under their own power fully a year before the accomplishment of that same much-heralded feat by the German U-boat Deutschland.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mrs. George Hutton and Mrs. George Washburn will be the hostesses at the Twelfth Club on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Soper of 42 Brewster street celebrated their 20th anniversary at their home on Saturday evening. The evening was spent with selections on the Victrola and dancing. At 11 o'clock supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Soper were the recipients of many beautiful gifts, including cut glass, china, linen and silver. About 40 guests were present.

The Hallowe'en dance given by the Knights of Columbus was an especially delightful affair. The assembly hall was very artistically decorated with corn stalks, etc., while every light shed its brilliancy through the beaming countenance of a Jack O'Lantern. Yellow and black crepe paper festooned the room, and an added attraction was the witch orchestra, which appeared in full costume but gave forth excellent music of this natural world. Even the outside lights of the building were pumpkin faces. The dance which was a great success was very largely attended.

Wickham-Snyder. Raymond Wickham and Miss Jennie Snyder, both of Saugerties, were married Wednesday night at 8 o'clock at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. A. S. Snyder, by the Rev. A. S. Snyder. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Becker of Saugerties.

Mitchell-Cragan. John Mitchell of No. 2 Post street and Miss Elizabeth Cragan of No. 50 Murray street were married on Tuesday at St. Mary's Church by the Rev. John J. Hickey. They were attended by Joseph Miller and Miss Jennie Miller. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell are popular young people and have the well wishes of a host of friends.

Atherton-Club. The Atherton Club met on Wednesday afternoon with Miss Van Slyke at her home, Rockhurst. Current events were presented by Miss Holmes. Miss Van Slyke had the paper for the day, her subject being "August Strindberg, Exponent of Naturalism," and the subject was admirably handled, all present considering the paper an exceptionally fine one. Next week the club will meet with Mrs. William Kraft at her home on Albany avenue.

Snyder-Mitchell. A quiet home wedding took place in Onequethaw on Wednesday, October 25, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mitchell when their only daughter, Nita Marion, was united in marriage to Lewis Snyder of Hick Woods. The bride was attended by Miss Dora A. Snyder, a sister of the groom, and his brother, Nelson W., taking of a beautiful collation they departed amid a shower of rice and confetti, with many good wishes for a happy and prosperous life.

The Library Dance. The dance for the benefit of the library, which will be held in St. Mary's Hall on Friday evening, will be from all indications one of the most successful affairs of the season. Tickets are selling rapidly, and arrangements have been made with the weather bureau to provide a cool, fair, moonlight night to make the occasion favorable. What better way to pass a November evening than to dance? Should one's taste protest this question, or one's health or advanced years forbid this relaxation, it must be recalled that a ticket purchased for the dance will buy a book for the library, and that will also serve to pass a pleasant evening at home and give the purchaser the satisfactory feeling of a good deed done for the community.

Stork-Stein. A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Stein, No. 65 Henry street, when their youngest daughter, Miss Clara K., was united in marriage to George C. Stork of No. 58 Andrew street, by the Rev. George M. Cranston, pastor of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church. The bride looked charming in white crepe de chine trimmed with white satin. Miss Ida Stein, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and William Stork, a brother of the groom, was best man. After congratulations refreshments were served. The wedding gifts were numerous and costly. The ceremony was attended by only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. Both bride and groom have a host of friends who wish them a long and prosperous married life. Mr. and Mrs. Stork will reside at No. 58 Andrew street.

Milton. Milton, Nov. 2.—Willard Dayton is working in New Britain, Conn., and sends good reports of that place. Miss Lena Segersdorf spent the week end with her mother, Mrs. Isaac Ferguson. Seymour Roe visited his mother, Mrs. Phoebe Roe, recently. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Martin of Highland spent Sunday with his brother, Fred, Martin. George Herriot, Mr. and Mrs.

William G. Covert, Mr. and Mrs. Mears, Mr. and Mrs. Guy St. John, A. Homer Roe, Miss Josephine Northrup, Clifford Wood of Greater New York, were among guests of their respective families over last week end and also attended the M. E. fair. Theodore Rhodes has been suffering with a bad tooth. Captain Davis, who has been confined with a very sore foot, is improving under the care of Dr. Freston. Principal and Mrs. John Garrison of Kingston attended the fair on Saturday evening. Miss Florence Perkins of New York city has been staying with her aunt, Miss Jennie Rowley, during the absence of Mrs. and Miss Crook, who have been away visiting. Miss Mabel Case and Mr. Burr of Poughkeepsie were guests of the Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Lull on Sunday. Mr. Brock, piano and organ tuner and repairer, was busy in Milton on Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wilcox and Mr. and Mrs. Feeter of Highland, attended the fair on Saturday evening. The Ladies' Needle Craft of the Presbyterian Church will meet at the home of Mrs. R. W. Hallock on Tuesday, November 7, at 2:30 p. m. The annual fair of the Ladies' Aid and Epworth League societies of the M. E. Church held in Woolsey's Hall on Saturday last, was a grand success. The ladies maintained their reputation of serving delicious suppers, for the chicken supper was all that could be desired and except that the supply of chicken failed to hold out until all who wished had been served, there was a large attendance of the village and vicinity as well as from neighboring towns. The grab bag and the two young women in "ye olde time" costumes who conducted it in a unique way, were a great attraction. The net receipts were $244.

The Rev. Charles Lipp, a missionary of South India, will deliver a lecture in the M. E. Church on Friday evening at 7:30. Subject of lecture, "Strange People and Strange Lands." This lecture will be illustrated with fine stereopticon slides. No admission will be charged, but an offering will be taken to meet expenses. Services on Sunday, November 5, in the M. E. Church: Sunday school at 10 a. m.; worship at 11 o'clock. Subject of sermon, "A Light to the Gentiles." Epworth League devotional meeting at 7 p. m. Topic, "On a Still Hunt for Souls." Leader, Mrs. Chester Fisher. Evening worship at 7:30. Subject of sermon, "The Easy Yoke and the Light Burden." The Happy Hour Club were indeed happy on Hallowe'en, when they held a masquerade party at the parsonage. Our children and youth paraded the streets with horns and lighted pumpkins, making it known to the older folks that it was Hallowe'en and the evening for fun and out of the ordinary doings. There is less and less damage done every year and we older people must allow for these pranks once a year. On the 31st of October, 1916, a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Castarella. Don't fail to hear the lecture and see the stereopticon pictures Friday night in the M. E. Church. An offering will be taken.

ACCORD. Accord, Nov. 2.—R. H. Turner and family spent Sunday with M. C. Turner and family at Poughkeepsie. Also Chrissey, Benjamin Osterhout and Charles Anderson motored to Kingston Monday in Mr. Chrissey's car. Gross Schoonmaker motored to Lake Katrine on Monday. Augustus Sahler is ill. Muriel Christiana is suffering from neuralgia. Miss Rose Baird has returned home after spending the season at Mohonk Lake. The Misses Edna and Helen Davenport have returned from a visit with friends in New Jersey. The Rev. and Mrs. K. M. Reynolds spent Tuesday and Wednesday in town visiting old friends. Mr. Reynolds was pastor of the M. E. Church for several years. About 40 people gathered to hear the Prohibition speakers Tuesday afternoon. The usual Hallowe'en pranks were played Tuesday evening. James Chase has moved into the Baker house, formerly occupied by Dr. Grebin. Mrs. Leo Gazlay has returned to her home at Brighthurst, N. J. Mrs. M. C. Stratton had the misfortune to be quite severely bitten by her dog, "Ted," Wednesday. Miss Emily Quick is employed at H. L. DeVoe's. H. L. DeVoe is erecting a building over his stone crusher boiler. Peter Barthardt of Leibhardt was in town Thursday. The barn on the M. E. Church property is being moved to its new location on a line with the foundation of the new sheds.

Girl Killed by Automobile. Dorothy Schultz, a seven year old girl, was struck by the automobile of William R. DuMont near Vails Gate Tuesday afternoon and died four hours later at a Newburgh hospital. Her skull was fractured. The child became confused when a car passed the DuMont car and was struck by the latter, her skull being fractured.

Poison Found in Well. Highland Falls, Orange county, is upset over the finding of a large quantity of Paris green which had been placed in a well, much used by children, in the south end of the village. The motive and the perpetrator are mysteries.

THE COURT.

LIVE STOCK NOTES.

For perfect development a colt should carry its colt fat to maturity; then you will have style and "bottom." A sheep flock of uniform quality is a joy and inspiration as well as a sure profit. Separate the pigs and put the larger, stronger ones together. Handle the colts a little every time you go in the stable. Pat them all over. Let them expect to feel your hand on their bodies. Remember that while you are feeding your flock you are feeding for quality and quantity of wool as well as for the future lamb crop. A good scrubbing with soap and water will often start growth in a thriftless pig.

AMERICAN PERCHERONS WIN ENGLISH PRAISE

The following extracts from an editorial in the London Live Stock Journal are especially significant to American horse breeders: "Close observers of the heavy army horses that have been brought over to England from the United States must surely have been struck with their tremendous bone and scale, blended with a quality, at times, that appears quite startling in such massive animals. We particularly refer to gun teams, big, wide, heavy, intelligent, docile horses, with the unmistakable stamp of quality marked on their contour, both over their tops and below the knee. "Inquiry elicits the fact that the American preference for the Percheron and the cross of that breed is responsible for the big proportion of draft horses imported bearing the stamp we speak of—a foreign and unfamiliar look about the heavy frame, but a thoroughbred, or, say, a bloodlike appearance ever and anon peeping out of the horse at some point in its makeup. The premier Percheron stallions at the moment in the United States weigh practically as much as the Shires and the Clydesdales over there, and their limbs are much more free from feather or hair. "The cross of the Percheron stallions imported from France and bred in the United States on the native breeds has undoubtedly produced a very useful general purpose horse, which gives every satisfaction to the English government buyer wherever the animal has sufficient weight for heavy draft work. The medium sized horses, weighing from 1,250 to 1,500 pounds, have been the most useful general purpose horses. They are very tractable, active and maintain themselves on less food than many other types or breeds of horses. This class of animal has supplied our government with some of the best animals it has had from any source. In short, quite 60 per cent of the gun teams that we possess today are bred on Percheron lines. "When the leading live stock journal of Great Britain comments so favorably on the American horses it is strong evidence that American farmers have done well to make free use of Percheron blood.

An admirer of the Percheron breed of draft horses says that they are easier to keep than any other of the draft breeds. The Percherons also are over on their mettle, yet not nervous or fractious. They are free, prompt workers and are seldom headstrong. The stallion picture is a Percheron.

The Popular Hog in England. Swine breeders in England lay stress on the importance of size in the dam. They like a big sow bred to a boar of more refinement. They claim to get pigs which make the best use of their feed from a cross of a Berkshire boar on a Large White Yorkshire sow. The Berkshire breed in England is smaller than American Berkshires. The Large White is a heavier boned and larger animal, which puts on weight rapidly. The combination of the Berkshire quality and the Yorkshire size is said to produce pigs which grow quickly and which use their feed efficiently.

Fleece Improvement. In 1830 the average weight of wool was 24 pounds a sheep. In the last federal census year it was 6.9 pounds. While in sixty years sheep did not double in numbers, the production of wool has increased more than five times.

Weight of Draft Colts. The draft colt should weigh about 1,200 pounds when a year old, and although it will not mature until it is five years old, yet it should attain practically its full weight when three and one half to four years old.

The GYPSY'S CHARM

A Halloween Story
By CLARISSA MACKIE

Molly Ditson looked out from the farmhouse on the hill, shading her eyes with her hand. She saw a wagon lumbering along the road loaded with camp equipment and human beings. "I do believe they're gypsies," said Molly.

She watched them till they turned off the road and encamped on the edge of the old field woods.

A man's figure was walking in the road. Molly watched him, too, and saw him stop and look at the gypsies unloading their camp furniture. He spoke a few words to them and passed on.

"Joe Morton," remarked Molly to herself. "I wonder what he said to them."

Molly descended the hill and, entering the wood, saw a gypsy woman approaching her.

The slender, dark eyed nomad carried a shawl wrapped bundle that proved to contain a sickly infant. The young mother's sad face brightened when she saw Molly's friendly smile.

"Lady," she pleaded, "my little baby so sick. I can get no good milk. He will die!"

"No, no!" protested Molly. "No baby shall starve for milk in Oldfield woods! Sit down here on the leaves, and I will go home and get some milk for you."

"You are very kind, beautiful lady," murmured the weary mother as she sank to the ground and laid the whimpering infant on the soft leaves.

"Peoples say: 'Not give to gypsies, they steal enough.' But, lady, my people no steal!"

Molly smiled at the woman's head nodded once or twice and then settled into repose beside that of the little child.

"I wasn't tell Hannah that the milk is for a gypsy," she thought as she turned into a steep path that led directly up to her father's orchard. "Hannah does detest the whole tribe, but that baby is starving for milk, and he shall have it. The very idea of refusing milk when Hannah feeds it to the pigs every night!"

In spite of her defiance of Hannah Mix, the elderly housekeeper, Molly was wary enough to approach the milk horse by the back way. She opened the door and stepped within its cool shelter. A little stream trickled under the stone floor, and Hannah had her jars of milk and crocks of butter set in the water.

Molly lifted down a shining pail. Alled it half full of rich morning's milk and escaped with her booty to the wood. As she approached the gypsy she noted that the woman was sitting up, wide awake, staring after the disappearing form of a broad shouldered man.

"Who was that?" asked Molly sharply.

"A prince," said the woman, displaying two silver half dollars in her brown palm.

"A prince!" mocked Molly. "That was only Joe Morton."

Fifteen minutes later Molly was bidding the gypsy woman and the smiling baby farewell. The woman carried the pail of milk, and her dark eyes were very grateful.

"Wait, lady!" she called suddenly. And, setting the pail on the ground, she tumbled in her gay calico pocket and finally brought out a little box. From the box she extracted a gold ring, whose sole ornament was an extended hand.

"Wear this ring, lady," said the gypsy solemnly. "Some day will come a handsome stranger who wears another ring like it, and the hands on the two rings will fit together in a clasp. It is a charm that never fails to work. The handsome stranger will be your husband."

Molly slipped the ring on her engagement finger, kissed the baby and then lifted misty eyes to the earnest face of the woman.

"I thank you for the beautiful ring," said Molly sweetly. "But I am never going to marry. What then?"

"You cannot help it, wearing the charm," the woman nodded wisely.

Molly tucked a silver coin in the brown belt of the baby, and promising the woman that she would leave another pail of milk at the top of the path on the following morning, they parted.

At supper time the telephone rang, and a merry voice informed Molly Ditson that as this was All Hallowe'en it was proposed that the young people of the neighborhood should descend on the Ditson home for the evening.

"Good!" cried Molly as she hung up the receiver. "Hannah Mix, have you got anything in the house to feed fifty hungry folks?"

"Lord, help!" screamed Hannah, secure in the knowledge that she had a well filled larder. "If they can put up with crullers and cider and nuts and apples I don't care how many there be!"

By 8 o'clock the old house was ringing with laughter and music. Mr. Ditson was playing the fiddle, while a dozen couples danced in the long dining room. Molly was everywhere at once improvising games for the evening.

Mrs. Oliver Bunce added her near neighbor as Molly drew past. "It's a wonder Molly wouldn't take up with Joe Morton," she commented.

"Molly ain't never going to get married, so she says," cackled Miss Susan Libby.

"Humph! If I was a girl I wouldn't be putting on any airs about being a man hater, not when there was such a fine young man as Joe. Good evening, Molly. We were just wondering when you were going to settle down and get married," said Mrs. Bunce as Molly passed across the milk pen mir-

Molly wrinkled her pretty nose.

"You know I am going to become a dear, delightful little spinster like Susan Libby," she protested, dropping a light kiss on the offended Susan's ear.

"Dear, delightful little sauce box!" snapped Susan as Molly darted away.

Joe Morton came along, humming a tune under his breath. He smiled in his large, friendly way upon the two good gossips.

Mrs. Bunce put out a freckled hand. "Joe," she said, with heavy humor, "Susan and I are wondering when you're going to get married and settle down in that new house you built last spring."

"So am I," was Joe's noncommittal reply, and his dazzling smile took the sting from his answer. He moved away, still smiling and his eyes dreamily fixed on Molly Ditson's white clad form in the distance.

"That's right; follow the butterfly!" muttered Mrs. Bunce darkly.

While the older people discussed neighborhood affairs youth was making merry in the rambling old place. In the kitchen some were bobbing for apples, while others tested fate with melted lead or roasting chestnuts.

Molly followed the lead of his friends and entered into all the games with an amusing gravity. When his dark head emerged dripping with water from a tub, there was a great red apple held in his strong white teeth.

"Joe always gets what he goes after," said Oliver Bunce approvingly.

Joe Morton heard the words, frowned for an instant, then, shaking the drops from his head, smiled grimly.

"If that is the case," he muttered, "I might as well go and get what I want now. This Hallowe'en tomfoolery isn't necessary."

He picked up a towel from the snowy pile Hannah Mix had provided, dried his hair and face and went out of the kitchen into the back porch.

He had noticed that Molly went out that way.

In the midst of the revelry Molly suddenly remembered the milk she had promised the gypsy.

"I shall be so sleepy in the morning I can never get up in time," she thought. "Suppose I slip out to the milk house now and take it to the path! I can be back in time for the mirror tricks. It's only a quarter to 12 now."

So Molly disappeared from the kitchen and tripped down the winding path that led through the kitchen garden to the milk house. The moon was shining brightly, and the pumpkins were gleaming with frost. The little stream murmured its way among the stones.

The moon shone directly through the uncurtained window of the little stone floored room, and the glistening pails and pans gave back subdued reflections.

Molly reached for a pail and lodged a great new milk pan. It fell into her outstretched hands, and its shining surface reflected her charming face.

At that very moment a church clock in the village struck the hour of midnight, the magic hour of the entire year for all believers in charms. And who is young that does not believe?

And in that witching instant a shadow stole across the milk pan mirblood that another face was reflected beside her own. A warm breath mingled with hers; there was the not unpleasant fragrance of tobacco; a pair of strong arms encircled her shoulders and two hands clasped hers so that the pan fell clattering to the ground.

Molly stared down at the hands. They were strong and brown and well shaped, and on the little finger of one hand gleamed a small gold ring on which was a tiny left hand—extended as if to clasp another.

And the other ring and tiny hand was on Molly's engagement finger!

What about the gypsy's prophecy and the gypsy's charm?

"Oh-h-h!" breathed Molly suddenly.

"Molly, darling!" murmured Joe Morton's voice.

"Joe!" she cried faintly, and it is significant that she did not withdraw from his embrace. "Where did you get—that?"

She touched the little ring on his hand.

Then he saw the one on her finger and marveled.

"The gypsy woman gave it to me," he admitted. "I gave her a little silver for the kid, it looked so sick, and she—er—said my future wife would wear the mate to it—and is—the Molly!"

"I am sure she is, Joe!"

And Molly, the man hater, nodded shyly.

So Joe, still reaching long arms through the window of the milk house, drew the ring from his finger and slipped it on Molly's left hand. It settled down close to the other ring, and the two hands fitted together and clasped firmly.

And so the gypsy's charm became Molly's betrothal ring. When Molly wanted to return to the house and complete the evening's games Joe held her back for one last kiss.

"I'm going to carry the milk down to the orchard path," he said. "I'm not going to try any more stunts tonight, sweetheart. Fate cannot over us saying better than we now have, and I couldn't be any happier!"

Molly waved her hand as he strode up the path with the pail of milk, and the moonlight gleamed on the little ring which the gypsy had called a love charm.

A Clause in Napoleon's Will.

Peter the Great is said to have made a will in which he exhorted his heirs to approach as nearly as possible to Constantinople and toward India, but the authenticity of this document has been disputed, and it is shrewdly suspected to have been forged late in the eighteenth century by August Kotzebue.

Of the genuineness, however, of the last will and testament of Napoleon I. there can be no manner of doubt. One of its clauses was as vindictive as the testamentary instruction of Queen Anne to her husband to have her two doctors killed and buried with her. The exile of Longwood absolutely bequeathed 10,000 francs to a fellow called Canillon, who had been tried in Paris for an attempt to murder the Duke of Wellington. The man was still surviving in Brussels when Napoleon III. came to the throne, and Canillon was daily paid his legacy.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke).

New York, Nov. 2.—Speed is the main essential in football success in this generation. Beef and brawn count for but little when the foemen are fleet of foot and agile in movements.

This has been demonstrated on many occasions during the past two years, but never more forcibly than in that Pittsburgh-Syracuse game which was won, 30 to 0, by Pitt. That contest more than all the others that have gone before, forced the realization of the impotency of gridiron beef when it is pitted against speed and trickery.

Syracuse, with an unblemished record up to that time, went into battle, outweighing the Panthers almost 10 pounds to the man. Some years ago—that advantage would have insured victory for Syracuse. But those days have flittered far, far away.

Panthers Speed Amazing.

The orange line, from tackle to tackle, was the bulkiest in captivity. It contained two guards averaging 250 pounds—human mountains—two huge tackles, and a center weighing somewhere around 260. On paper it looked like an impenetrable line. But those Panther backs ripped it to shreds. Their great speed enabled them to get a flying start every time they aimed to ram it and when they crushed it the momentum rolled back the obstacles and let them through for big gains.

In open field, it was the same. The Pitt team, fast as any in the country today, was down under every punt, while the bulky orange men limbered along in the rear. When a Panther runner got the ball and escaped the ends, it was a certainty that a long gain was before him because the rest of the team was too ponderous to overhaul him. The tackles of Syracuse were of but little value in open field and the guards were almost useless.

And so it was when an orange man snared a punt. He rarely made a long runback. The fleet Panthers were down the field and dumping him before the Syracuse interference, slow in its movements, had time to form and give him protection. In every period of that play it became more and more apparent that the days of beef are over—that a team must sacrifice everything to speed if it aims to be a consistent winner.

Result of New Game.

Colgate, Washington & Jefferson and Penn State are teams that have risen to dizzy heights in the football world because the new game has paved the way for them—removed the weight handicap they had to suffer in the other years of the beef era.

Those three colleges have a small enrollment, the average being around 500. It's an almost impossible task to recruit from such a small crowd of pupils a team that could match in weight with colleges where the coaches have 5,000 or more men to draw from. And so, in the other days, when mass plays were vogue, it was rarely that the lighter colleges could nose out a victory over the heavier ones. They were crushed under the awful bulk of their foes.

All that is changed now. No longer is there a premium on bulk. Brains, speed and trickery count far more than weight. And so this "Small Fry Trio" has gone out and whaled the wadding out of the biggest enrollment college eleven in the country with startling frequency.

Once it merely constituted a "practice game" for Harvard, Yale, Cornell, Pennsylvania and other "big fellows" to meet W. & J. Penn State or Colgate. But not now, Oscar.

Lateral Heave Unpopular.

The lateral pass hasn't been used very often this year. Many teams tried it out in 1915 and found it too dangerous. It is a beautiful play to watch, a great ground game when it is properly executed. But when it fails—ruin!

The play is a sort of double forward pass usually worked along the sidelines. The center passes the ball to the quarterback and he flips it to one of his mates—usually an end—who has raced to the sideline. Upon receiving the pass, Mr. End is supposed to hurl it forward to one of his associates, who, by that time, if on schedule, should be 20 or 30 yards nearer to the opponent's goal line.

In this triple handling of the ball, with the possibility of fumbling, lies the greatest danger. The next man in line is making the final pass. If the man elected to make the real run with the ball has reached his station and is "uncovered" by any of his foes, O. K. But the chances are that one of the enemy is lurking in that neighborhood and when the final heave is made, said enemy leaps into the ozone, extracts therefrom the whirling ball and—blooie, blooie!
